

Aged Father Sees Unidentified Men Kidnap His Son

E. T. Dominy, Prominent Laurens Planter, Thrown Into Mystery Car and Whisked Away.

RUSE IS EMPLOYED IN TRAPPING FARMER

Estranged Husband, Made Prisoner by Strangers, Sought by Georgia and Florida Officers.

Dublin, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—E. T. Dominy, about 21, prominent Laurens county farmer, was kidnapped at the family farm, about 16 miles north of here, as his aged father looked on early today, and whisked away in one of the fastest and most expensive make of automobiles on the market. The mystery machine bore a Florida license tag and was occupied by two unidentified men. The car has been traced to Hawkinsville, on a southerly course from this city.

Police in scores of south Georgia and Florida cities have been asked to arrest and hold occupants of the car on charges of kidnapping. Dominy and his wife lived in Florida for several months and recently became estranged. Dominy returning to the home of his father, A. J. Dominy, in this county, while his wife remained in Florida.

Father Sees Kidnaping. Young Dominy was awakened early Thursday morning by a man, who asked his assistance in repairing his car. The boy's father was awakened also and accompanied his son and the stranger to the car, 200 yards south of the Dominy home.

Upon arrival at the car two men stepped from the machine and bodily threw Dominy into it, while the car sped away, leaving the father bewildered in the road. The aged man, however, stated that the car bore a Florida license tag and gave officers the name of the design and other information of the machine. He stated that the car was muddy and evidently had come from a distance.

Traced Toward Florida. Sheriff Lester Watson was notified immediately and in turn notified city and county officials in practically all south Georgia counties and upper Florida. Later he succeeded in ascertaining that the car had passed over the direct Florida route from Dublin, passing through Hawkinsville, 45 miles away, shortly after 7 o'clock. No further trace has been learned of the car or its occupants.

According to the elder Dominy, his son made no outcry when thrown into the machine, evidently being gagged. The kidnapped man is a member of one of the county's most prominent families and is well known in middle Georgia.

750 ABSENT VOTERS RENDER UNCERTAIN LINDSAY ELECTION

Denver, November 6.—The question of whether or not Judge Ben B. Lindsay, Denver's nationally known juvenile judge, had been returned to office in his race with Judge Graham, republican, still was undecided tonight. Although complete unofficial returns gave him a lead of 207 votes over Judge Graham, announcement that approximately 750 absentee voters were yet unaccounted for threw an air of uncertainty about the election.

Judge Lindsay, in his race for reelection, identified himself with a local political group known as the "visible government" ticket and denounced the Ku Klux Klan.

16-YEAR-OLD BOY LEAPS 5 STORIES TO ESCAPE POLICE

New York, November 6.—A 16-year-old boy leaped five stories from the roof of a tenement house today in an effort to escape from police and a crowd of men who were chasing him on the suspicion that he had entered and robbed a rooming house.

Although both of his legs were broken and he suffered internal injuries, he crawled into a nearby basement and remained undiscovered for some time.

The Chest—Crime-Preventer

Among all the agencies in the Community Chest, none is of higher importance than those which, by building character, prevent crime.

According to figures announced recently, crime cost the people of Fulton county close to $1,500,000 in 1921. That was approximately 35 cents wasted out of every dollar the city and county had for public expenditures in that entire year.

Crime will cost the people of the United States three billion dollars in 1924, according to the estimate of William B. Joyce, chairman of the National Surety company.

Anything that tends to prevent or lessen crime, therefore, is of public importance and touches the pocket of every taxpayer.

ELECTION RESULT HELD TO REBUKE ALL RADICALISM

Politicians of Major Parties, as Well as Many Progressive Leaders, Agreed on Lesson.

SENATOR BROOKHART CITED AS EXAMPLE

Congress Is Expected To Eat Out of Coolidge's Hand Without His Using "Big Stick" on Members.

BY MARK SULLIVAN. New York, November 6.—The reaction of the politicians to this election is practically unanimous. Republican and democratic leaders agree upon it. So do the third party leaders, except a few of the most implacable.

They all say that the people voted against radicalism. They put it in stronger terms and say that a majority of the voters were in a mood to seek out radicalism and condemn it, to hunt it down, with a kind of intelligent determination. The politicians prove this and illustrate it by analysis of the results.

One case is that of Brookhart in Iowa, who appears to have barely escaped defeat. So far as I know, there was no national politician in either party who thought of Brookhart as being destined for anything, except easy victory. Every one of the politicians I talked with took it for granted that Brookhart would win easily. He was even thought of as being destined for higher honors in the new party. He was regarded as the probable successor of a La Follette in leadership.

Hunted Brookhart Down. Then when the early returns showed Brookhart running behind, all attention was focused on that fight. It was not merely the fact of Brookhart running far behind that was anticipated. It was the determined intelligence with which many of the voters were finding a way to express their disapproval of him.

The democratic candidate for president got a small vote even for a democrat in Iowa. But the democratic candidate for senator against Brookhart ran him neck and neck. That one democrat, in this election, should rise far above the level of the party's strength was extremely impressive to the politicians. They all made the same inference, namely, that the people were determined to express themselves against radicalism of the kind that Brookhart stands for. This case of Brookhart in Iowa is only one of many examples which the politicians pointed out in their study of the returns, all convincing them of the same point.

Will Affect Congress. It is anticipated that the effects will show themselves within four weeks. On the first Monday of next month, congress will come into session. Coolidge will send a message to it. The expectation is that whatever Coolidge recommends will be done. Any congressman who opposes Coolidge's recommendations will take his political life in his hands.

All this is very different from what congress was a few months ago. Congress last spring flouted Coolidge, passed bills over his veto. He had intended to go farther in that course the coming winter. There was talk that congress would make radical changes in the laws governing the railroads would carry to a greater extent the publicity of income.

Gotham Bombed By Radio Wave Across Atlantic

Helen Keller Opens Campaign to Provide Blind With Radios.

New York, November 6.—Demonstrating the sinister possibilities of a new deadly weapon of future warfare, a Britisher, sitting at the key in a powerful radio station in London, Thursday night flashed an impulse across the Atlantic and exploded a bomb in New York City.

The bomb, however, was only a demonstration bomb at the third annual national radio exposition and there were no casualties. As the blinding flash occurred, an automatically-controlled camera clicked and a photographic record was made of the first successful attempt to bombard New York from London.

Many celebrities were present at the demonstration Thursday night, among them Helen Keller, noted educator among the blind, who opened a campaign to place a radio set in every home and institution for the blind.

"The instant that radio is tuned in, all the world will crowd into the humble home of our blind friends," she said. "Through this new gateway of experience the blind will enter a world of action with bright skies and happy tales and regions of sweet content."

'Honest John' Burke Stages Comeback in North Dakota

Fargo, N. D., November 6.—"Honest John" Burke, three times governor of North Dakota, United States treasurer during the Wilson administration and a principal in the famous New York bankruptcy case of Karpis and Burke in 1922, when he was rendered virtually penniless, staged a comeback today.

Although a democrat, in a state overwhelmingly republican, which elected him three times as governor, "Honest John," as his friends have dubbed him, made a sweeping victory Tuesday in the race for membership on the North Dakota supreme court. Since his return from his unprofitable venture on Wall street, Burke has practiced law in Fargo. After serving the war-time president until his retirement from office, he associated himself with Louis Karpis, New York broker, organizing the firm of Karpis & Burke, brokerage firm of New York. The firm, caught in a whirl of brokerage failures, however, went to "the wall" on February 1, 1922.

It was here that "Honest John's" friends claimed he lived up to his sobriquet. Every cent of his personal fortune was turned over willingly by Burke to the firm's creditors, even a paid-up life insurance policy. Therefore, at the age of 63, he faced life admittedly penniless and with the laconic statement of "I'll begin over."

The voters of North Dakota aided him considerably in that "new start," returns showed today.

BALDWIN CABINET INDICATES REIGN OF PROGRESSIVES

Active Wing of Conservative Party Is Drawn Up in Preference to Old "Die-Hard" Faction.

BY CHARLES M. MCANN. London, November 6.—Stanley Baldwin has announced the composition of his Tory cabinet and with the formal proclamation the austere Lord Curzon begins to step down from the heights to which he struggled in his futile effort to become leader of the conservative party and prime minister of England. Austen Chamberlain, one of the Lloyd-George coalition renegades who refused to desert the little Welshman when the coalition fell, succeeds Curzon at the foreign office, where the noble marquis played the martinet from 1916 to the labor success in 1923.

Curzon has been demoted to the twin towers and nominal duties of leader of the house of lords and lord president of the council.

Makeup of Cabinet. Here is the new conservative cabinet: Premier and first lord of the treasury, Stanley Baldwin; chancellor of the exchequer, Winston Churchill; foreign secretary, Austen Chamberlain; war secretary, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans; admiralty, William C. Bridgeman; lord privy seal, Marquis of Salisbury.

Leader house of lords, Lord Curzon; lord chancellor, Viscount Cave; colonial secretary, L. M. S. Amery; secretary for India, Lord Birkenhead; secretary for air, Sir Samuel Hoare; president board of trade, Sir Philip Lloyd George; minister of health, Neville Chamberlain; minister of agriculture, E. F. L. Wood; minister of labor, Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland; attorney general, Sir Douglas Hogg; home secretary, Sir William Joynson Hicks; minister of education, Lord Eustace Percy; secretary for Scotland, Sir John Gilmour.

Churchill to Be Chancellor. Winston Churchill, a liberal cabinet member, who recanted that faith a year ago and was returned in last week's election as a conservative, has obtained the chancellorship of the exchequer, the chief plum short of the premiership itself. Curzon's eclipse, the emergence of Churchill and Chamberlain as first grade stars in the conservative constellation, and the general complexion of the cabinet itself, apparently definitely mark Baldwin's break with the die-hard element of his party. For the next four or five years England will be governed by the progressive wing of conservatism.

Drop Protective Tariff. Churchill is an uncompromising free trader. His inclusion in the cabinet, his real and personal properties, including public utilities, as returned for taxation and adopted by the controller general.

In addition to the importance of this amendment to the six counties

Lodge Mock Trial Ends In 'Sure Enough' Wedding

St. Paul, Minn., November 6.—Senator Magnus Johnson, the farmer-laborite candidate for reelection to the United States senate, conceded his defeat late Thursday to his republican opponent, Thomas D. Schall, the blind orator-congressman.

The vote from 3,238 precincts showed: Schall, 365,201; Johnson, 347,606.

In a hall beautifully decorated for the occasion the bride, who blushing admitted to 53 winters and an equal number of summers, and the groom, who boastfully gave his age as 60, presented a striking picture as they marched across the hall to the official altar. Beside the principals, the drill team, in full regalia, formed a V-shaped wedge about the altar while Rev. G. L. Hankinson joined the couple in wedlock.

Bride Under "Arrest." Following the ceremony the happy pair received many beautiful gifts in a miscellaneous shower and were honored guests at a banquet supper served in the hall.

Following the drill which preceded the wedding, Mrs. Robbins was arrested on charges of "willfully and maliciously entering a conspiracy to perpetrate the crime of contracting marriage with a member of the opposite sex."

REPUBLICANS GAIN CONTROL OF HOUSE; SENATE DOUBTFUL

246 Seats in Lower Body Already Captured, With One More Seat Still in Doubt.

MARGIN IN SENATE HANGING BY THREAD

Senator La Follette and Three of His Supporters Counted in G. O. P. Membership of 52.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, November 6.—On the same tide which swept President Coolidge back into office, the republicans have come into actual as well as nominal control of the next house of representatives. Whether they also will have the whip hand in the senate still depends on the outcome of contests in several states.

With a single house district still in doubt, the republicans have captured 246 seats in that body, on the face of unofficial returns. This is an increase of 21 over their present strength and 28 above a majority.

Leaders of the party regard this margin as sufficient to leave them in control, particularly as to organization, even in the face of any coalition between La Follette insurgents and the democrats, such as tied the organization of the present house for many days and successfully challenged a number of administrative proposals.

52 Republican Senators. With belated returns showing the reelection of Francis E. Warren, in Wyoming, the republicans in the senate had increased their majority from the bare 49 to 52. Included in this number, however, were Senator La Follette and at least three other of his supporters.

In the face of this situation, it was conceded that in order to have a workable majority, it would be necessary for the republicans to win in at least one of the two contests in Minnesota and New Mexico, and to fill the vacancy in Connecticut at the special election next month, called after the death of Senator Brandegee.

In one of the two states where the senatorial result still is in doubt, would have an effect on the ability of the administration forces to recapture control of the senate, the republican candidate, Representative Magnus Johnson, one of the two farmer-labor senators from Minnesota, is believed to have conceded his defeat.

Bureau Is Gaining. In the other state, New Mexico, the republican nominee, Senator Edmund D. Schall, is in the lead over the democratic candidate, Representative Magnus Johnson, one of the two farmer-labor senators from Minnesota, is believed to have conceded his defeat.

Four New Seats Won. The republicans were able to increase their lead in the senate by capturing four seats now held by democrats—one each from Colorado, Kentucky, Massachusetts and Oklahoma—giving those states solid republican representation. The only hope the democrats have of gaining ground over their indicated membership of 39 in the next senate lies in their ability to win out in Iowa and New Mexico.

Leaving out of consideration the three states where the result still is in doubt, the republicans have elected

G. O. P. Meet Ends In Open Conflict; Assault Charged

Death Is Near, Physician Says

THOMASON CLAIMS HE WAS ASSAULTED

Meeting Called to Hear Charges of Irregularity Exonerates Georgia Leaders.

DOCTORS BELIEVE DEATH OF LODGE MATTER OF HOURS

Senior Massachusetts Senator Slowly Dying of Paralytic Stroke in Cambridge Hospital.

Cambridge, Mass., November 6.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was still battling for his life at the Charles Gates hospital here late Thursday night, with little hope for his recovery held out by his physicians. His death is believed to be a matter of a few hours.

Dr. Frederick Winslow, one of the attending physicians, announced that the patient's condition remained unchanged.

"There is no change in Senator Lodge's condition," Dr. Winslow said. "He is very gravely ill."

Senator Lodge has been unconscious since Wednesday noon, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis resulting from the rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. Until the unexpected stroke came, he was believed to be recovering from the effects of two operations recently performed for a bladder ailment.

Members of the Lodge family, who had gathered at the hospital during the day, left their homes and hotels in Boston late in the evening, but were to be called if the senator's condition became worse before morning.

Forget-Me-Nots On Sale Today To Aid War Vets

Pretty Atlanta Girls and Matrons Devote Work to Disabled Heroes.

Loving remembrance of deeds of valor, wounds and sacrifices for flag and country will be brought home today in Atlanta's observance of "Forget-Me-Not" day, part of a national movement designed to assist disabled American veterans in their fight to "come back."

Pretty Atlanta girls, attractive matrons and a score of civic leaders have joined hands in the movement here and Atlantans are asked to observe the spirit of the day by purchasing hand-made flowers or small tags. Proceeds from such sales will be used in aiding the wounded to regain their health and take up civil vocation where they were left off in 1917.

Scars and disabilities in many instances will be worn through life, but in many other instances time, medical skill and care will enable wounded ones to become self-sustaining, able-bodied citizens. In that hope Atlanta men and women ask contributions.

The Atlanta and Lowry National bank is headquarters for the one-day drive, workers meeting there early this morning and continuing the sale of flowers and tags throughout the day. Groups of workers will be stationed at downtown business corners.

Proceeds will be deposited in the bank. A committee of prominent Atlantans has been appointed to disburse the funds for relief and welfare of disabled veterans.

Warrant Alleging Attack Issued Against Gilliam, State Central Committee Chieftain.

THOMASON CLAIMS HE WAS ASSAULTED

Meeting Called to Hear Charges of Irregularity Exonerates Georgia Leaders.

Breaking forth into open conflict, the factional strife that has long been raging between republicans in Georgia Thursday flared into new life at a meeting at the negro Odd Fellows' hall, 200 Auburn avenue, resulting in dismissal of charges of irregularity that had been brought against Chairman W. Y. Gilliam and Vice Chairman W. R. Tucker, of the state central committee, and the departure of Dr. Gilliam from Atlanta shortly after a warrant had been issued for his arrest on charges of assault and battery.

The two factions of the party had gathered to hear the airing of charges brought against Dr. Gilliam and Vice Chairman Tucker. The charges were made by F. Marion Thomason, who alleged that irregularities existed in the collection of campaign funds by Gilliam and Tucker.

The warrant for Dr. Gilliam's arrest was sworn out by Thomason, who alleged that he was attacked at the meeting after he admitted to Dr. Gilliam that he was the author of the irregularity charges.

Harmony Was Myth. Rumors have been current for several weeks that the professed harmony within Georgia republican ranks was a myth and that the old political feud threatened to burst forth again at any time. However, the growing storm was quieted by a promise that any and all charges would be heard at a meeting to be held two days after the national election.

The meeting was called for Thursday noon at the negro Odd Fellows' hall. Ben J. Davis, negro secretary of the state central committee, presided. The atmosphere was tense when he ordered immediate hearing on the charges brought by Thomason.

Versions of what happened differ as related by officials of the different factions. Thomason and Grier declared Thursday night that the hearing was a farce; that Davis dismissed the charges without permitting any trial, and that he did so in the face of opposition from a large majority of those present.

United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager, who was present at the meeting, stated that the charges were given full hearing before the committee and that Dr. Gilliam and Tucker were exonerated by a 4-to-1 vote. He charged that Thomason had been used as a pretext to bring charges on which Grier had once backed down when faced by Dr. Gilliam.

There was no denial from any source that Dr. Gilliam attacked Thomason.

Tells of Fighting. "Dr. Gilliam attacked me without provocation," declared Thomason, "and Tucker struck me while I staggered from the blow struck by Gilliam. I expect to swear out a warrant for Tucker Friday."

Thomason asserted that Dr. Gilliam approached him and asked if he made the charge that was about to be made.

heard. When Thomason admitted that he was the author of the charges, Dr. Gilliam is alleged to have brought his fist into action. Thomason said Gilliam struck him in the face and that Tucker struck him on the head.

Spectators separated the combatants and the meeting proceeded. Thomason and Grier alleged that Davis conducted the hearing in an arbitrary manner, refusing to hear any evidence and declaring the charges dismissed in the face of a majority vote to the contrary.

District Attorney Hager stated that the charges were given a full hearing and that Thomason and his faction were represented by Attorney O. B. Duke, of Floyville.

"Every opportunity was given Thomason to substantiate his charges against Dr. Gilliam and Tucker," said Mr. Hager, "but there was no evidence to bear out the charge that funds had been collected in irregular fashion."

Mr. Hager stated that Dr. Gilliam left for his home in Copper Hill, Tenn., before he knew that a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

REPUBLICANS GAIN CONTROL OF HOUSE

ed eighteen senators and the democrats twelve.

In the house the democrats appeared tonight to be certain of having 183 seats, as against their 207 in the present house. They took only four seats now held by republicans, while they were losing twenty-seven.

Where Democrats Lost.

The district in which the democrats gained were the eighth Ohio, fifth Maryland, second Kansas and eighth Missouri. They lost to the republicans in the first New Hampshire, the twelfth, fourteenth, seventeenth, nineteenth, twenty-second and thirtieth Pennsylvania, the ninth Ohio, the third, fourth, eighth and ninth New Jersey; the first and eleventh Indiana, the fifth Connecticut, the first Michigan, the sixth and twenty-first Illinois, the third Oregon, the second, fourth and fifth Virginia, the fifth, thirteenth and fourteenth Missouri, and the members-at-large from Delaware and Nevada.

Thus none of the gains are from the La Follette bloc, which returned its full strength. One of these insurgents—Laguardia, of New York City—was re-elected on the socialist ticket, and with Victor Berger, of Milwaukee, will constitute the house membership of that party. In three Minnesota districts farmer-labor candidates were successful, one of them capturing a seat now held by a republican.

Speaker Fight Next.

With the removal of Frederick Gillette from the house through his election as senator, in place of David I. Walsh, democrat, the republicans of the next house will face what now promises to be a sharp fight over the speakership. Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee, already has announced his candidacy for that office, and friends of Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, the present republican floor leader, have stated publicly that they will seek his election.

Menocal Admits Defeat.

Havana, November 6.—Former President Mario G. Menocal, the defeated conservative candidate in the recent presidential election, has admitted in a letter to General Machado, the victorious liberal candidate, that Machado won the presidency.

RAINEY IS REELECTED BY SMALL MARGIN.

Chicago, November 6.—Representative Henry T. Rainey, democratic incumbent, was re-elected to congress from the 20th Illinois district over Guy L. Nine of the missing 19 precincts are normally democratic territory.

REPUBLICAN MAJORITY CLIMBS IN COLORADO.

Denver, Colo., November 6.—With only 43 scattered precincts missing, that can make no change on the final result, President Coolidge tonight had amassed a total vote of 195,195 against 77,281 for John W. Davis and 58,190 for Senator La Follette.

RECOUNT GIVES LEAD TO G. O. P. CANDIDATE.

RED BANDS CONTINUE RAIDS ON POLE BORDER

Warsaw, November 6.—Raids by bands of alleged bolsheviks upon towns in the eastern provinces of Poland continue, and there is agitation for the appointment of a strong minister of the interior to deal with the situation.

Former Premier Witos has declared in the district court that there are on the average two cases of such looting daily in the eastern provinces. The latest incident occurred at Ostrog, where a gang attacked and looted a large store used for the storage of goods for trading with the soviet. The Watchman and a policeman who came to his aid were killed.

COUNTY DEPARTMENTS SURVEY IS UNDERWAY

A survey of the Fulton county departments which will be placed on a salary basis January 1 is being made by the county commission, it was announced Thursday, for the purpose of arranging salaries for department heads and attaches. Each member of the commission, with the exception of Paul S. Etheridge, has been assigned to the task of investigating a department. Commissioner Etheridge is forced to leave the city on account of ill-health, it is said.

Commissioner George M. Hope will survey the needs of the superior court clerk; Commissioner Charles G. Turner, the sheriff's department; Commissioner Virlyn B. Moore, the department of tax collector, and Chairman Edwin B. Johnson, the departments of ordinary, tax receiver, solicitor general and city solicitor.

The salary act approved by the legislature fixes a salary of $12,000 a year for the solicitor general, $6,000 and $4,000, respectively, for his two assistants; not less than $10,000 for the solicitor of the criminal law, and $5,000 for one assistant, but failed to make provision for clerks in either office.

A special meeting of the commission has been called for Tuesday, at which time the results of the survey will be discussed. The duty of fixing the salaries of all attaches of various offices will fall upon the commission, it was ruled by County Attorney Charles B. Shelton, who declared that it would not be legal for the commission to assign a lump sum for the operation of departments.

Several county officers already have presented the commission a list of names of attaches and salaries they are now receiving. These lists will be examined before action is taken, it was announced.

AUTO ASSOCIATION DRIVE UNDERWAY FOR XMAS TRADE

Subscriptions have been received from practically all members of the Atlanta Automobile association, as well as non-members of the organization of automotive equipments industries in Atlanta, in order that the "Buy Something for the Car Christmas" campaign, which is being conducted by the association, can be put over, according to C. V. Hohenstein, secretary.

The campaign is a co-operative advertising campaign to acquaint the public with the fact that cars and equipment are acceptable gifts for Christmas presents.

The publicity campaign will begin in the three Atlanta daily newspapers immediately after Thanksgiving day, and will be accompanied by window displays by car dealers and automotive equipment agencies, it is said. Approximately 100 dealers and agencies have joined the move.

DISEASE HOSPITAL CONTRACT IS GIVEN TO GRIFFIN FIRM

Award of the contract for erection of the city's new contagious disease hospital as an annex to Grady hospital to the Griffin Construction company was approved by Mayor Walter A. Sims Thursday, when he signed a resolution to that effect. Officials of the construction company state that the building probably will be completed by February 1.

Council appropriated $25,000 as the city's share of the cost of the unit last January, but the work was not started and the money was withdrawn from the finance sheet. It was replaced, however, in the annual re-appropriation of the sheet in October and was passed by council. The hospitals and charities committee then recommended award of the contract to the Griffin Construction company.

The county has agreed to furnish $25,000 in money and materials, contingent on the city's appropriation. The mayor also attached his signature to a special resolution passed by council last Monday which appropriated $500 for entertainment of members of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at their annual convention here this month.

Mayor Sims failed to act Thursday on letting of the contract for paving of North avenue between Peachtree and Myrtle streets to the McDougald Construction company, and also deferred action on the proposed salary increase for the secretary to the chief of construction. Both have been passed by council and concurred in by the aldermanic board.

Electrical Association To Consider Changes In Governing Rules

A radical change in the membership of the Atlanta Electrical association was proposed Thursday at noon at the weekly luncheon of the association at the Ansley hotel by L. S. Montgomery, chairman of a committee on recommendations of constitutional amendments.

The changes contemplated in the amendment admits an individual membership for employees of firms already possessing company memberships in the electrical body. These changes will increase the membership of the Atlanta Electrical association from 45 to over 150, according to Mr. Montgomery, and will insure a league of solidarity and influence.

The Atlanta Electrical association has been promoting the local phase of the national home-lighting campaign. Charles A. Collier, regional director, reported at the Thursday meeting a registration of 9,500 school children of Fulton and DeKalb counties, a large number of whom will submit essays on proper home lighting in competition for local and national awards, it is said.

RETAIL MERCHANTS PLAN FINAL MEETING

Final membership meeting for 1924 of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association will be held Tuesday, November 20, in the cafe of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building. A special reception is being planned for members of the Atlanta Retail Jewelers' association, an organization recently affiliated with the retail merchants' organization. R. C. Snider is president of the Retail Jewelers' association and is expected to address the meeting.

PHYSICIANS CALLED IN MCCLAIN'S TRIAL

Grady hospital physicians who attended Theodore Owens on the night of his death will be called by the defense today in the trial of W. P. McClain, charged with slaying Owens on the night of October 1. McClain went on trial Wednesday before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court. The state charges that he struck Owens a fatal blow with a "blunt object." McClain contends that Owens died of heart failure, and physicians will be called to give testimony regarding the condition of the deceased body when he was brought to the emergency hospital at the Southeastern Fair grounds near where the alleged killing took place.

After the state concluded its testimony Thursday with the story of Owens' death from the lips of his widow, the defense began introduction of witnesses. Court was adjourned, however, shortly after 1 o'clock and will reconvene this morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Owens testified that her husband and McClain came to blows after she and Mrs. M. Brown, companion of McClain, had exchanged blows following an argument. The argument resulted from McClain's automobile blocking the path of the Owens' machine at the fair grounds, Mrs. Owens testified.

Mrs. Owens told the court that her husband attempted to separate her and Mrs. Brown, when McClain went to his car, declaring that he would "fix them both." She said that McClain went to his car and leaned over, coming back suddenly and hitting her husband. Owens fell to the ground, Mrs. Owens said, and McClain jumped on top of him.

"We took him to the emergency hospital," Mrs. Owens said, "and the next time I saw him he was dead."

Mrs. F. T. Coan, sister of the dead man, took the stand and told substantially the same story. McClain denies striking Owens, contending that he died of heart failure. The indictment charges McClain with striking Owens with "a blunt instrument, unknown to the grand jury."

The trial is expected to last through today and tomorrow.

Mountaineer Hurls Proverbial Wrench Into Federal Court

Brought to the witness stand in the role of star witness for the prosecution in the case of C. C. Coyle, prohibition agent, charged with accepting a bribe, John Henry Hardin, alleged mountaineer moonshiner, threw the government's case on the rocks of defeat when it was called Thursday afternoon before United States Commissioner Joe Abbott, resulting in dismissal of charges after Hardin testified that he "paid Coyle to catch stillers in my community."

Coyle was arrested and placed under bond recently after Hardin is alleged to have told George E. Golding, special agent of the government intelligence unit, that he was paying Coyle for "protection." Marked money placed in Hardin's hands by Golding and his agents is said to have been taken off Coyle's person at the time of his arrest.

Many citizens of Marietta, Coyle's home city, were present when the trial was called Thursday. The hearing was held in Judge Sibley's court room. Coyle was represented by Judge Newt Morris and Colonel John Moseley, both of Marietta. The prosecution was conducted by United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager.

There was a moment of tense silence as Hardin took the witness stand to relate the circumstances under which he was alleged to have paid Coyle money. He told how he had paid the dry agent $20 at their first alleged discussion of moonshine operation.

District Attorney Hager pressed the witness for an answer as to whether or not this money was paid for protection. Hardin said he paid Coyle to exercise strict watch in catching moonshiners in his home territory.

Hardin recently completed service of a sentence of 18 months on conviction of paying a bribe to Ed Dixon, a prohibition agent. He already had served a sentence for violating the prohibition law. His long record as a moonshiner has caused him to be dubbed by dry agents as the "king of mountain moonshiners."

ALABAMA AND FLORIDA KIWANIS IN SESSION

Orlando, Fla., November 6.—Eleventh-hour changes were necessitated in the program for the sixth annual convention of Kiwanis clubs of the Alabama-Florida district when J. Y. Cheney, general chairman of the convention, announced that the convention would be held at the San Juan hotel lounge by Mr. Cheney. Presentation of the international officers included Fred C. W. Parker, secretary, of Chicago, and Henry Heins, treasurer, of Atlanta.

Kiwanis President Victor M. Johnson, stating that it would be impossible for him to participate in the convention as he had planned. President Johnson wired, however, that he was sending a substitute to take his part on the program planned by the convention committee. The convention was formally opened at 1:30 o'clock in the San Juan hotel lounge by Mr. Cheney. Presentation of the international officers included Fred C. W. Parker, secretary, of Chicago, and Henry Heins, treasurer, of Atlanta.

The University of Chicago recently awarded over 100 fellowships for the year 1924-25.

Elephant Contest Closes Saturday; Warning Issued

With only two days remaining for receipt of solutions in The Constitution's famous elephant puzzle contest, the management of the event Thursday night issued warning to all persons who have been working on the puzzle to lose no time in submitting their answers.

The event comes to an official close Saturday, and scores of people have already submitted their solutions to the "weight" of the much-talked-of pachyderm and thus become candidates for the 30 big cash awards, totaling $2,510 offered winners.

"Fair warning is given every person interested in the contest to get his or her solution into the hands of the contest manager without loss of time," it was said Thursday. "Those who wait until the very last moment are running the chance of having some unforeseen incident transpire that may prevent them from submitting their solutions. Play safe, and send in your solution today—at once."

The sum of $9,550 qualifies for the largest prize of $1,000. Two six-month subscriptions at $5 each, totaling $10, are equal to a year's subscription. One six-month subscription and two three-month subscriptions at $2.50, are equal to a twelve-month subscription. Four three-month subscriptions at $2.50 each, total remittance $10, is equal to a twelve-month subscription to qualify for the larger prizes.

It is not necessary that the contestant send his or her own subscription. Another subscription can be sent and the solution recorded in the name of the contestant.

REPRESENTATIVE TO SELL AND JOB

The largest manufacturer in its line has an unusually profitable proposition for a high-class representative who is able to present it to the retailers of soft drinks in Atlanta and adjacent territory. This will be very closely allied to the largest selling soft drink and will be without competition.

We prefer a representative who is now engaged as a broker, or distributor of a line of mechanical goods to retailers. He must carry some stock and be in a position to give our line the necessary time and attention. This is a high-class remunerative proposition backed up by a corporation that has manufactured this line for eighteen years, and has proven in that time that its product is a great money-saver to all soft drink retailers as well as greatly increasing their sales.

Davis To Return To Law Practice After Sea Cruise

New York, November 6.—John W. Davis, defeated democratic nominee for president, will return to the practice of law in New York after a holiday day to be spent on a cruise in the Mediterranean, it was announced today by his secretary. Mr. Davis will leave within a few days to visit his former home, Clarkstown, W. Va.

Mr. Davis spent yesterday at the New York home of Frank L. Polk, former assistant secretary of state, and today at his home at Locust Valley, L. I.

Upon his nomination for president, Mr. Davis resigned from the law firm of Stetson, Jennings, Russell and Davis, which he joined in 1921 on finishing his service as ambassador to Great Britain. At the same time he gave up directorships in several corporations.

PORT TERMINAL BILL BEATEN IN CAROLINA

Raleigh, N. C., November 6.—North Carolina voters Tuesday turned down one proposal to issue bonds and apparently adopted another. They apparently adopted constitutional amendments limiting the state debt, exempting half of the mortgage on homesteads from taxation and providing that sinking funds shall only be used for the purpose they are provided for.

Indications tonight were that the vote on the question of raising the salary of members of the state legislature, which now stands at $4 a day, would be very "close and possibly might be lost."

Defeat of the port terminal bill, submitted to the people at the extra session of the legislature in August, carrying $8,500,000 worth of bonds for building seaport terminals and establishing a state ship line, was conceded today by Governor Morrison, who sponsored it, and General Albert C. Morrison, manager of the campaign for it. A proposal that the state issue $2,500,000 worth of bonds, the proceeds to be loaned to various ventures who wish to buy land, had a majority of 31,729 in its favor with only 520 precincts returned. With one exception, every return received gave a majority for the measure.

ROME PASTOR SPEAKS AT ATLANTA CHURCH

Dr. J. E. Sammons, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rome, Ga., will be the principal speaker at Inman Park Baptist church tonight. The service will mark the close of a series of programs which have been conducted at the church this week known as "enlistment meetings."

Having once been president of the Baptist Young People's Convention of Georgia, Dr. Sammons' appeal will be largely to the young people. His subject will be "Saving the Saved." The "enlistment meetings," which have been featured by speeches by outstanding denominational leaders of the state, will be brought to a close Sunday morning when Judge U. V. Whipple, of Cordele, will speak at the morning services at the Inman Park church.

SIX MONTHS GIVEN JAP WHO CUT DOWN FLAG

Tokio, November 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Rikichi Okada, who cut the American flag from the flag staff in the grounds of the destroyed American embassy on July 1 last was yesterday sentenced to six months' imprisonment. His two accomplices were sentenced to four and two months, respectively, with a suspension of sentence for two years, which means that if they are of good behavior during that period, they will go practically unscathed.

The judge, in announcing his decision, said the unselfishness of motives prompting the deed justified the suspension of the sentence.

Okada cut down the flag during the demonstrations held throughout Japan in June and July as a protest against the American immigration excluding Oriental immigrants from the United States.

LANGLEY, LIPSCHUTZ ARRANGE FOR APPEAL

Covington, Ky., November 6.—Attorneys representing John W. Langley, congressman from Kentucky's tenth district, and Milton Lipschutz, of Philadelphia, arranged today for the appeal from their conviction in federal court for violating the nebulous law. Each of the defendants was sentenced to serve two years in federal prison.

The attorneys filed the necessary papers and presented bonds for the appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals.

DANIELS TO SPEAK AT EMORY TODAY

Emory University, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—Josephus Daniels, secretary of the United States navy under President Wilson, will deliver his lecture, "Passing the Buck," at the Emory chapel Friday night at 8 o'clock.

The lecture will deal with subjects of a political nature and will be of special interest not only because of the experience he has had in the administration of the navy during the world war and in his position as a member of President Wilson's cabinet, but also because of his close touch with national and international problems. He will discuss the good and bad features of the national government.

Mr. Daniels will be the first of the series of lectures to be brought here by the Emory Student Lecture association during the school year. Other speakers will be announced later by the association officers.

The Affiliated Lyeum and Chautauque bureau says the following of Mr. Daniels and is work as a lecturer:

"America and Americans have been much interested in Josephus Daniels, not only because of his remarkable record as secretary of the navy during the war, but also on account of his keen grasp of international problems, and his absolute fearlessness in discussing the hard, as well as the good, in our social and political fabric."

"He was a big man before the war, and the country at large came to realize it after Josephus Daniels and his aides built the 'bridge of ships' to England. Just as he measured up to his big job during the war, so has he measured up to the exacting requirements of a public that is giving serious and mature consideration to the big problems of the navy."

"That wants to hear a man not alone for what he says, but also for what he is as well. Consequently his 'challenge' lectures to America—for in plain, frank English that is exactly what they are—have caught the ear and the conscience of serious-minded, thinking men and women."

"Mr. Daniels has been a leader of his party from his youth, but always a forward-looking and independent leader. His hardest fights have been his own party. For 20 years he served as a member of the national democratic committee, and in three national campaigns prepared or directed the literature of the party. He served in Washington under Cleveland and again under Wilson as secretary of the navy."

"Mr. Daniels has been an editor for 40 years and still publishes the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, the only morning daily at the capital of his state. The utterances of his paper are widely quoted. He is author of two volumes in addition to smaller pamphlets. The first was 'The Navy and the Nation,' published during the world war, and the second 'Our Navy at War,' being a comprehensive story of what the United States navy achieved overseas and on this side in 1917-18."

"Mr. Daniels made the navy what he calls the 'biggest educational institution in America,' and the secretary of the navy 'the president of the biggest American college.' He is a member of the governing board of the University of North Carolina and the American university at Washington, D. C. He has received the degree of LL.D. from seven universities and colleges, and the degree of Doctor of Letters from Washington and Lee."

One Near Death Another Burned In Gasoline Fire

Clayton, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—Jesse Shirley, 25, is believed to have been fatally burned, and Nesbet Mosely, a visitor, was less seriously burned, when the Shirley home was gutted by flames early today. Doctors tonight waged a fight to save Shirley. The Shirley farm is two miles south of Clayton on Steco creek, and is considered one of the most valuable in Rabun county.

Details of the origin of the fire are unknown here, but it is reported that the men were handling some gasoline, which took fire, causing a 50-gallon drum to explode.

DALTON MACCABEES SET HIGH RECORD

Dalton, Ga., November 5.—(Special.)—Inspired by the success of its own activity during past weeks, Security Tent, No. 2, Order of Maccabees, has set a pace in its membership drive that is believed to be unequalled in the state, according to announcement made here by officials of the order.

An indication of the success that has already been attained by Security Tent is seen in the announcement that more members have been enrolled within the past 60 days than have been enrolled during the five years preceding the present drive.

This is considered all the more significant when compared with the fact that this is the oldest Maccabee tent in Georgia. Security Tent was organized more than 30 years ago.

Eighteen new members were initiated Wednesday night. An average of this number has been initiated at semi-monthly meetings for past two months.

The Dalton degree team has come to be considered a crack team of North Georgia. It is under the direction of J. B. LaFette, special Maccabee deputy.

M. D. Gleason, of Atlanta, director general of the Maccabee caravan movement, attended the meeting Wednesday night. Mr. Gleason is devoting much attention to charting the route that will be followed by Maccabees as they journey from various sections of the country to the national convention in Washington next July.

Say Bobbed Women Should Tip Hats And Smoke Pipes

Berlin, November 6.—Berlin newspaper editors are having an animated discussion over the momentous question whether the modern bobbed-hair women should tip their hats to each other. Another problem is whether they should extend their use of tobacco to the smoking of pipes.

The pipe smokers have provided dainty little affairs, not much larger than cigarette holders, and these are on display in the smart shops, but none has been seen in use in public as yet.

Women cigar smokers are no longer a novelty in Berlin's hotel lobbies. Among the visitors to the capital are many Swedish women who apparently find little satisfaction in cigarettes, and join their husbands in smoking real man-sized cigars.

FORCES OF CHANG ENTER TIENTSIN

Tientsin, November 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Troops of General Chang Tso-Lin, victorious Manchurian war lord, who has defeated the armies of the Peking government, arrived here last night from Shanhai kwan.

The train of 40 cars which carried the Manchurian soldiers was preceded by a flat car with a sand-bagged platform upon which a gun was mounted ready for action should the train draw fire from remnants of the Peking troops scattered along the railroad.

As nightfall approached, the Chang Tso-Lin troops arrived in Tientsin in a steady stream. They were under strict instructions to maintain order and are creating an excellent impression with the noncombatant public.

According to officers, the Manchurian army includes 5,000 Russians and 400 Japanese.

Sentries of Feng Yu-Hsiang were on duty at the Tientsin central railway station when the Manchurian troops arrived and this indicates he approves the advance of the Manchurian army from the north.

Entrance of Chang Tso-Lin forces into central China indicates that the Manchurian leader will take an active hand in organizing the government under Feng Yu-Hsiang. Announcement that troops will be moved in the vicinity of Nanking presages an attempt on the part of General Chang to oust General Chi Shieh-Yung, who obtained control of Shanghai and the Chekiang province by defeating General Lu Yung-Hsiang.

General Lu, who is allied with General Chang, by reason of their affiliation with the Anhui party, fled to Japan after his defeat, but was reported at Mukden, Chang's headquarters in Manchuria, a few days ago, where he was received by General Chang.

RESTORATION PLOT RUMORS DENIED

Peking, November 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—The decision of Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian general," now in control of the Peking government, to take over the imperial city yesterday by removing the "boy emperor" to the home of Prince Chun, the former regent, was not due to a restoration plot. Foreign Minister Wang today told newspaper correspondents. The government had no knowledge of a plot to restore the "boy emperor" to the throne, he said.

The foreign minister said the order removing the young emperor was made without consulting other leaders outside the controlling government, as "there was no need to consult private citizens." Minister Wang said he thought the whole country would approve the change in status of the deposed emperor.

Reviewing the country's misfortunes as the result of misgovernment, Minister Wang said there was a limit to endurance and tolerance. "We have only driven out a handful of corrupt persons," he said. "The new government will live up to its foreign treaty promises, but in so doing wishes to remind friendly powers that China has a right to her own existence and any addition derogatory to the right of a free and independent nation must be rectified by mutual agreements as quickly as the exigencies require."

Minister Wang said the situation with respect to foreign affairs called for a conference with representatives of other nations, but this conference might be delayed two or three months.

MILLERAND REENTERS POLITICS IN FRANCE

Paris, November 6.—Alexandre Millerand, former president of France, today formally reentered politics when, as chairman of the executive committee of a new party—the national republican league—he issued a manifesto vigorously attacking the policy of the present government and of the radical-socialist coalition.

The manifesto is interested as a preliminary step to M. Millerand's candidacy for one of the vacant seats in the chamber, which must soon be filled by a special election.

Farmer-Labor Movement Engineered by Communists

(This is the ninth installment of a series of articles in which Jacob Spolsky, former agent of the department of justice, reveals disclosures he made concerning the activities of communists in the United States.)

BY JACOB SPOLSKY.
CHAPTER XX.

In the fall of 1922 was launched the farmer-labor party. Heralded by a blare of publicity for weeks before the sessions opened, the impression was created that this convention would mark the formation of a new political party which should have for its purpose the furtherance of farmer and labor interests.

As had been expected, leaders from both factions immediately leaped at the opportunity to associate themselves with the movement. Far leaders saw in it a chance to exploit their cause, and labor greeted the proposition with open arms.

So cleverly was the entire project handled that not until the congress was half through its session was it discovered that the whole affair was merely a gigantic communist plot, engineered from Russia, to provide a new and legal offensive weapon for striking at the root of government under the guise of a political party.

Spokers of the new "party" accomplished their work so shrewdly that the desired result was all but obtained. Many recognized leaders of American labor flocked to attend the conference, including John Fitzpatrick and Edward Nockels, of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Labor Discovers the Plot.

More than 8,000 delegates crowded to Chicago to attend this convention, representing every section of the United States. In the midst of the sessions, however, the communist idea cropped out. Labor leaders and other factional leaders discovered that the place was packed with hand-picked delegates chosen by the communists, and when it came to the election of officials and the adoption of party policies it was quickly apparent that the communists meant to obtain complete control, and the "new party" idea, which had been looked upon as an honest effort to obtain for labor and the farmer their full rights and privileges, was disclosed as nothing but a bold attempt on the part of the communists to "capture" the American labor unions.

Withdrawal by all prominent labor leaders of the communist faction followed, together with several hundred "delegates," and the communists were left to finish the affair as best they could. In spite of the withdrawal, support of organized labor, and now claims a membership of more than a million. Few of these, however, may rightly be termed prominent in labor circles.

The struggle by the communist leaders for control of organized labor is naturally the branch of expansion toward which they are—and always have been bending their most strenuous efforts.

The "Red International." In June, 1920, the communist international called a conference of the executive committee to plan ways and means for uniting the trade unions of the world into an international organization which should be dedicated to the work of winning all trade union members over to the cause of revolution. A number of I. W. W. delegates participated in these conferences, but refused to endorse the movement. The movement was started nevertheless, and a provisional bureau established to take charge of the work. This was the beginning of the international council for trade unions which now holds conventions at stated intervals, and is known as the Red International.

Chief among the agitators in American labor unions is William Z. Foster. It was he who founded the Trade Union Educational League, for the purpose of spreading propaganda throughout all labor unions in the country, and it was he who engineered the "winning from within" method, which during the last five years has stirred up considerable trouble and unrest, complicating the industrial system to such an extent that the government, on two occasions, was forced to step in and avert a national tieup of industry.

Because of the danger of arrest in case of detection, communists in this country are forbidden to gather in large groups except on special occasions, when special orders from Russia direct delegates to gather in convention at some certain point.

Labor Logical Medium. The nature of the movement itself makes labor the logical body through which, if communism is to succeed at all, the principles, ideals and aims of communism may be transmitted from the masses to the masses.

But, although several thousand workers individually have allied themselves to the communist cause, the main body of union labor—and not union as well—has remained aloof, refusing to join this organization which cries so loudly for the "freedom of the working man." Labor leaders—even those who have been accused of being radical in feeling—have consistently refused to cast their lot with the communists.

The United States government had adopted a hands-off policy and allowed communism to proceed in the open in the belief that it would hang itself without aid from outside. But with the government expressing its disapproval of the movement and refusing to allow the spread of propaganda in the open, communists have had little success in their attempts to gain the approval of labor organizations. This does not mean, however, that strenuous attempts have not been made to overcome this opposition.

Formation of Nuclei. Under no circumstances are they permitted to meet in groups of more than ten, without special orders from the central executive committee. The organization, therefore, must depend for its operations on the spread of propaganda secretly distributed, and upon small groups which act independently but always under specific instructions received from the communist headquarters. In the labor unions, as well as in other industries, these small groups are known as nuclei.

What the duties of these nuclei are may best be understood from the innumerable reports of nuclei sent out secretly by the recent international meeting in Moscow.

A communist nucleus," this order reads, "formed out of members of the communist party of each union, undertakes to transform the union into a revolutionary fighting organism. It must be built up about this nucleus a sympathetic following of those who, while not so clear in their views, will fight in the immediate present with the communists on the concrete issues that arise from day to day.

"For crystallizing and educating a sympathetic following in the unions, the communists create or participate in the creation of certain organizations of the more advanced workers in the union. These may take various forms, such as movements to improve the type of union structure, industrial, educational movements, etc. It should be the aim of the communists to gain the dominant influence in these organizations, and to make of them instruments for the general communist purpose of revolutionizing the unions."

BEALL PARK SOLD TO FULTON COUNTY

The final obstacle in the sale of Beall park to Fulton county was removed Thursday when Mayor Walter A. Sims signed a resolution passed by city council Monday authorizing sale of the park for $45,000. He also approved a resolution empowering city officials to negotiate with the owner of Brisbane park with the view of purchasing that property, and which set aside $21,000 of the amount realized by the sale of Beall park to be used if the city decides that Brisbane park is satisfactory for use as a playground.

Plans are being completed for erection of a county high school to cost between $150,000 and $200,000, at Beall park, and work will be started as soon as possible, it was stated Thursday by Edwin F. Johnson, chairman of the board of county commissioners.

The county also plans to purchase the remainder of practically the entire block and to use the space not occupied by the school as a playground. The present county high school, located at Trinity and Central avenues, has no playgrounds. Under terms of the agreement between city and county authorities all children will be permitted to use the playgrounds except when school is in session.

Brisbane park, located at Windsor, Crumley and Glenn streets, consists of approximately four acres, and is purchased by the city for $25,000. It is the second ward a much larger playground space than formerly.

Beall park was acquired by the city about five years ago for $35,000. At that time it was intended to build an elementary grammar school on the site but the land was given over for a park and playground equipment was installed early this year.

51 AMENDMENTS DELAY SOUTH CAROLINA COUNT

Columbia, S. C., November 6.—In all probability the rest of the referendum election Tuesday on various amendments to the South Carolina constitution will not be known with any degree of certainty before the end of the week or the first of next week, it was learned late today from Secretary of State W. P. Blackwell. Mr. Blackwell stated that so far none of the returns had been received in his office.

Requiring a bare majority for the passage, the measures providing for the reorganization of the legislature, far-reaching changes in the state government, appeared from meager and unofficial returns today to have received an almost equally divided vote for and against. Managers of election have been slow in compiling the results because there were 51 state and county amendments on the ballot.

Among the more important of the proposed amendments to the state constitution were those providing for biennial sessions of the legislature, four-year terms for state officers, abolition of the three-mile constitutional school tax, and changing the fiscal year of the state to begin July 1 instead of January 1.

Available returns indicate defeat of a $10,000,000 bond issue for state institutions.

M. L. SWINEHART NAMED LAYMEN'S LEAGUE HEAD

New York, November 6.—M. L. Swinehart has been released by the Southern Presbyterian church with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., to become general secretary of the Laymen's Church league. J. Campbell White, vice chairman of the executive committee of this new organization, announced the news.

Mr. Swinehart, who has been a civil engineer in Korea for the past thirteen years, will organize the laymen's general conference of 1,000 men which will be held either in Louisville or St. Louis in March.

Members of these nuclei meet from time to time, in many cases as often as once a week, to discuss matters pertaining to gaining control of union activities. It is their purpose at all times, as may be inferred from the above excerpt from the Moscow orders, to create a feeling of unrest, make other members of the union dissatisfied with labor conditions and thus win them over to communism and revolution.

Rain Forecast; Mercury Slated To Take Plunge

Rain, for the first time in almost two weeks, is to fall in Atlanta this afternoon, according to the official forecast made Thursday by C. F. von Herrmann, in charge of the local office of the United States weather bureau.

With the predicted showers will come a considerable drop in temperature, it is stated, and considerably colder weather may be expected for Friday night, Saturday and Sunday. The outlook for next week, however, is for rain during the early portion but fair and warmer later in the week.

The change due Friday is caused by a cold area in the northwest, which is spreading considerably and is expected to hit this section today. Thursday fair weather and moderate temperatures continued to prevail generally in the south and east. Atlanta's mercury readings ranged from 56 in the early morning hours to 74 in the afternoon.

Accidental Shot Kills Youth, 16, Hunting Ducks

Fayetteville, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—The body of Herman Reed, 16, son of William Driver, of Fayette county, was found in a barge floating on Lee's pond, about a mile from the city, early today with a gunshot wound in the head.

A man by the name of Cochran and his son, who live near the pond, were the first to find the body. They reported the death to officials at Fayetteville and Sheriff T. M. Kerlin and Coroner E. L. Dorsett investigated.

The verdict returned by a coroner's jury in that young driver came to his death by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in his own hands. It developed on the inquest, by the testimony of the youth's father, that the boy had been hunting ducks. He left home early and was found about 6 o'clock.

The father testified that he heard a shot about 10 o'clock and his son left home, but supposed his son was shooting at some bird. He made no investigation.

Other survivors besides his father are a brother, Ernest Driver; a sister, Mrs. J. U. Turner, and several smaller brothers and sisters.

Typewriter Sets Type.

A typewriter machine that is operated directly from the keyboard of any standard typewriter has been designed especially for use in getting out printed form letters and in the production of books. Thus a stenographer, in writing a letter, sets the type simultaneously, and her typewriter page serves as proof of the type in the form, says Popular Science Monthly for December. The setting machine is operated by the typewriter keyboard through electrical connections.

RECEIVER NAMED IN VINSON CASE

Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, Thursday appointed Andrew Calhoun, of the Calhoun Realty company, as receiver for property now involved in litigation between Mrs. Cora Vinson and her daughter, Mrs. Pauline Vinson Brown.

Mrs. Vinson is serving a life sentence at Milledgeville for the slaying of her husband, Dr. W. D. Vinson, in March, 1922, and is now seeking cancellation of a deed made by her to her daughter, it is alleged.

Mrs. Vinson, in a suit filed in Fulton superior court, charges that she turned the estate left by her husband over to her daughter in order that the latter might settle certain obligations. It was understood, Mrs. Vinson alleges, that as soon as these obligations were settled the property was to be reconveyed to her by her daughter.

Mrs. Vinson further charges that Mrs. Brown has refused to carry out this agreement, and has devoted funds gained from rental on the property to her own use.

Mrs. Brown denies the charge, alleging that all money obtained from the rental of the property has been used to pay attorney's fee for her mother and other debts accruing against the property. She refuses to reconvey the property to her mother.

Judge Humphries appointed Mr. Calhoun as receiver of the property, the receivership to continue until the litigation is ended. The hearing Thursday before Judge Humphries will be followed by a trial of the case before a jury.

Mrs. Vinson was brought from the state penitentiary at Milledgeville to Atlanta in order that she might testify at the hearing of her suit.

COOLIDGE WORKS DESPITE CALLERS

Washington, November 6.—President Coolidge was again at his desk for long hours today, but a steady stream of callers offering their congratulations and an ever-growing pile of congratulatory messages continually directed his attention to the election.

With the success of the national ticket assured interest at the white house centered in the outcome of the congressional contests and considerable satisfaction was apparent as returns indicated working majorities for the party in the house and possibly in the senate.

Meets with Publishers.
Mr. Coolidge was able, however, to devote some attention to government business in the afternoon, and at a conference of more than an hour with representatives of publishers' associations and Postmaster General New considered the postal rate situation.

The publishers included Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of Philadelphia; Frederick W. Hume, secretary of the National Publishers' association, and A. C. Pearson, chairman of the American

GILPATRIC ON WAY TO TERM IN PEN HERE

New Haven, Conn., November 6.—G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and defaulter, was taken to the state prison at 12:40 this afternoon, for the sentence of 15 years for imprisonment imposed in the United States court last week by Judge E. S. Thomas.

Gilpatric, who is blind, was in charge of U. S. Marshal J. D. Walter, who with deputies had three other prisoners convicted of violation of the narcotic and other federal laws. The party boarded the Colonial Express for Washington on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway.

Before leaving the county jail here, Gilpatric took leave of his wife and other friends. He expressed the hope while in jail that he would live to serve out his sentence and return to his family.

Blinded as a result of his attempted suicide by a self-inflicted bullet wound, he said he would attempt to learn the use of raised letters and other facilities for blind persons.

He pleaded guilty to charges of embezzlement of amounts aggregating about $250,000 from the Putnam bank, discovered after his attempted suicide at his home last August.

GOULD'S COSENT TO WEDDING READ

New York, November 6.—A letter in which Howard Gould, a trustee of the $82,000,000 Jay Gould estate, gave his consent to the marriage of George J. Gould, his brother, and Guinevere Sinchur, was read today at the accounting suit hearing before referee James A. O'Gorman.

"Of course, dear brother," Howard wrote, "I am going to give my consent as trustee to your marriage, and if you will have a legal form drawn up and send me I will sign it and have it witnessed by the consul. I hope you will be very happy, and there is no reason why you should not be for Miss Vere is very charming and estimable."

Howard argued in the letter that the marriage clause in the will of his father was invalid and suggested that George go ahead with the marriage without asking the consent of the other trustees, Edwin and Helen Gould, now Mrs. Finley J. Sheppard, as their disapproval might make it difficult for him.

During the morning session Walter B. Walker, of counsel for Frank Gould, principal objector to the accounting, charged that the late George Gould, by taking advantage of his position as president of the Missouri Pacific railroad, and managing executor and trustee of his father's estate, engineered a transaction which eventually resulted in a loss to the railroad of several millions of dollars and from which he received $200,000. Mr. Walker claimed that when George paid back the principal to the estate after three years he retained all the profits.

ROGERS' DEATH CAUSED BY NO CRIMINAL ACT

New Haven, Conn., November 6.—No criminal act, or carelessness of any person contributed to the death last Saturday night of Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman, neighbor of Mrs. O'Brien, of New York city, Corner Eli Mix said today in a finding. Rogers was found unconscious in an automobile on the side of the turnpike in North Haven and was brought to a hospital here where he died.

When Rogers was found by passing motorists, his companion, Miss Marjorie R. Schneider, of this city, had fainted. When revived she was unable to tell what had happened. The machine bore marks of a collision of some sort. Rogers died of a fractured skull.

The coroner found that Rogers and Miss Schneider lunched together at noon Saturday and had some liquor, attended the Yale-Army football game at the Yale bowl and went to an inn in Wallingford, where liquor was served to them and to acquaintances who sat at other tables.

When Rogers and Miss Schneider left the inn to return to this city, the coroner says, "both were more or less under the influence of intoxicants taken at said inn."

On account of the dense fog prevailing, the finding declares, Miss Schneider, who was driving, leaned out of the car to observe the highway. Rogers sat opposite her on the front seat. Miss Schneider drove at a rate of 20 miles an hour, the coroner says.

Suddenly, the finding declares, Miss Schneider, becoming aware that a portion of the windshield had been smashed, stopped the car and found Rogers body lying over the right rear door, his head and shoulders being in the car and his legs outside. Recovering her senses, she summoned aid and Rogers' body was taken to the hospital.

The coroner said that friends of Miss Schneider "all advised her to say she was not operating the machine," which led to "untrue statements" on her part and subsequent recital of the story which served to explain the incidents preceding the accident. Testimony of other witnesses threw no further light on the cause of the collision.

One-third of the $8,000 needed for the work already has been voted by the city and the remainder will be paid from board of education funds.

The county's share was voted Wednesday after approval has been made by Alderman W. D. Hartsfield and W. W. Graves, a member of the board of education.

Kindergarten for Negroes Receives Support of Chest

(Editor's Note: This is the eighteenth of a series of articles being furnished by the Atlanta Community Chest to acquaint the public with the work of agencies of the chest, which The Constitution is running to aid the chest drive, which began last Wednesday.)

One of the most interesting of the colored charities connected with the Community Chest, from a human interest standpoint, is the Gate City Free Kindergarten association, which has inaugurated free day nurseries for children of women who have employment away from home.

The kindergarten, it is explained, has been operated by the colored people in Atlanta for 10 years, but when the pressing need was recognized for day nurseries, A. F. Herndon, wealthy member of the race, donated funds for a nursery to be established at 44 1-2 Dover street. The Community Chest, relieving workers from the duties of soliciting funds, has made it possible for two day nurseries to be established at this site.

One of these is a building, the use of which was proffered free by a friend of the movement, at 71 Rock street, but the donor has decided to sell the building the present year and the inter-racial committee has signified its willingness to aid in securing a permanent structure of its own for the Rock Street day nursery.

This nursery was opened on January 15, and has been operated with two rooms, a kitchenette and bath. The Community Chest has supplied the running expenses and repairs.

Second Day Nursery.
At 225 Piedmont avenue another day nursery was opened on May 1, a friend of the movement procuring the building, putting in necessary plumbing and placing it in shape for use. This unit the Community Chest also has looked after furnishing supplies for its maintenance and paying for repairs of its six rooms.

Children are received at these institutions from the ages of six months to 16 years, between the hours of 6 in the morning and 6 in the afternoon, and are kept until their mothers are employed elsewhere. Every effort is made to keep the children contented and they are not only well fed and amused but are provided with every means for keeping clean and well. Upon arrival at the nursery each child changes into a play suit. While in the home the children are taught lessons of cleanliness and order and are given advantages of many kind that a number of the little fellows might not receive at home.

Since the first of January the nurseries have enrolled 216 children, releasing a large number of women to perform their duties in the consciousness that their children will be properly cared for during the day. The little ones are guarded to prevent accidents in any way and none of them are allowed to loiter in the streets, as they might do if they were left at home.

The women in charge of the various units are said to be devoted to the work, and splendid results are being obtained through these institutions. It has been reported. Those in charge of the nurseries are profuse in their praise of the Community Chest, saying that the success of their various units could not have been possible but for the money provided through the great organization.

COMMITTEE FAILS TO GET PROPERTY FOR MANSION SITE

The special legislative committee authorized at the last session of the general assembly to investigate and make recommendations for purchase of a new governor's mansion for the state adjourned Thursday after being in session for two days, to meet at a future date, it was announced, to hear other offers from owners of suitable property in Atlanta.

E. B. Dykes, one of the house members of the committee was named secretary, and he announced Thursday afternoon that real estate owners might submit properties for consideration to him at Vienna, Ga.

Among properties inspected was the Ed Inman home, in Ansley Park; the original Edward A. Ansley home, now owned by W. W. McEachern, and leased for one year by Governor Walker; the John E. Murphy home, at Peachtree and Fourteenth streets; the Dr. Floyd McKee home, at Peachtree and Fifteenth streets; the former Walter P. Andrews home, at Peachtree and Andrews drive.

ADMIRAL ROBISON GRILLED IN PROBE

BY H. O. THOMPSON.

Los Angeles, November 6.—Defense testimony offered by Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, chief of the navy engineering bureau, was assailed vigorously by the government Thursday in the oil lease cancellation suit now being tried in federal court here.

Admissions of Robison's vagueness on facts connected with E. L. Doherty leases in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve were obtained in a strenuous cross-examination conducted by Owen J. Roberts, assistant government counsel.

Robison had said that secrecy concerning arrangements for Pearl Harbor storage construction work was decided upon just before the contracts were signed. Roberts produced a deposition made out by Robison in the Mammoth Oil company suit, in which the witness declared that secrecy was decided upon on October 21, 1921, several months before the contracts were presented.

Asked to explain the conflicting statements, Robison said: "I try to testify as my memory serves me."

At one point Roberts waxed dramatic, raising his voice and pointing a finger at Robison, he shouted: "Didn't you, you who claim to have been in close touch with the whole navy program, didn't you know that the bureau of yards and docks went to congress and asked for $1,000,000 for Pearl Harbor work?"

The witness denied any such knowledge.

Roberts brought out an admission that Robison did not want bids on the storage project from the Standard Oil company.

"Did you know that the Standard Oil company oppose a contract such as the Pan-American secured," Roberts asked.

"I didn't much want a bid from

GODWIN MAY PLAY OGLETHORPE AGAINST L. S. U. SATURDAY

Smithies Clash With G. M. A. This Afternoon

Tech High Team Is Badly Crippled for Cadet Game At Ponce de Leon Park

BY GORDON KEITH.

Tech High meets the thin red line of G. M. A. at Ponce de Leon park this afternoon in the second prep league classic of the season. The game gets under way at 2:30 o'clock and is to be played at the rendezvous of the crackers, Ponce de Leon park, rather than across the street on Spiller field, where all prep battles this season have been fought.

The meeting today promises to produce some real football, and is of particular interest not only as having a direct bearing on the prep championship, but as one of the historic and always colorful Tech High-G. M. A. football battles. The Smithies and cadets have argued it out on the gridiron for many seasons, often for the championship.

Coach Tolbert's men are rather heavily favored by the dope sheet. G. M. A. has had only two days to rest up from the boys' high game of Tuesday, and the men are still sore and stiff. Coach Tolbert says he will have them ready this afternoon, however, and will give the Smithies plenty to worry about despite the handicap. None of the men was hurt badly enough against boys' high to keep him out, and although the squad is in the pink of condition, the cadet eleven will be in fairly good shape to halt the Smithies attack.

Tech High Stars Out.

Tech High, on the other hand, has two or three first string men who are definitely out, and two more who may be able to get in the game, but will play only a part of the time, if at all. Davis, who will be out for a couple of weeks, and Rush, varsity center, is still out with injuries from the Steele game. Parsons, the Smithie drop-kick star, is out for the season, with a broken ankle. Stumpy Thompson, the star of stars, has had a bad ankle, and if it is hurt again he will probably be through for the season. Mayhew, Stumpy's fleet running mate, has a weak shoulder and is in about the same situation as Thompson.

Red Barker will probably start at one half, with Parshall at the other. Morris will likely start at Davis' end, and Lautenschlager, last year's all-prep center, will be shifted from tackle back to the pivot position, and McCune or O'Beir will run in at his tackle. Tech High will meet the Riverside cadets next week with what will come as close to being a state championship game as any battle scheduled, and the Smithies will have to be at their best to turn back the strong Gainesville eleven.

Tech High was returned victor over G. M. A. last season after a long battle. The Long boy will not be on a flank to snag forwards this afternoon, however, and Thompson ought to be better than ever if his ankle can stand the strain.

The rivals will line up as follows:

TECH H. P. G. M. A.
 Morris, H. P. O'Neil
 McConnell, L. L. Oliver
 Payne, L. L. Matthews
 Lautenschlager, C. C. Rainey
 Watkins, L. L. Mayo
 McClure, L. L. Ragdale
 Holland, L. L. Camp
 Rosenblatt, L. L. Pike
 Randolph, L. L. Goodrum
 When Captain Holland of Tech High, and O'Neil, G. M. A., two of the best ends in the state, oppose each other this afternoon, a real battle will result. And when Goodrum, all-prep fullback for the cadets, and Randolph, Smithie full, start playing at the opposing lines, something is likely to give, for no able prep line-plungers ever broke through a forward wall than these two players.

Some great line play will come of the meeting of Oliver and Matthews on the one hand and Lautenschlager and Payne and Watkins on the other. Another good game booked for the local grid is the meeting of Deatur and the five Carrollton High aggregation. This promises to be a close and interesting struggle, with Carrollton favored to win.

The contest between Marxist and the A. and M. school at Powder Springs has been called off on account of an epidemic of mumps in the camp of the latter team. University and Boys' High play on foreign grids this week, the Bluebirds meeting the Riverside eleven in Gainesville, and Boys' High battling the Newman High team in Newman.

University and Riverside are old enemies, and since dove points to a close game, this year's battle should be just as good as any record in the old games to have been. Boys' High should win from the Newman team, and no doubt the charges of Coach Collins would have little trouble if the team was in the best of condition, but the Hurricane spent its strength in blowing a 5-0 victory over G. M. A. Tuesday, and the eleven will do well to take the high school team into camp.

Ruth, Hornsby Most Feared Of Big League Batsmen

Note.—This is the 12th and last of a series of articles analyzing the vote by which the players of the two big leagues picked all-league teams.

(Copyright, 1924, in United States and Canada by North American News-Paper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

Who are the most feared batsmen in the two big leagues? That's easy—Ruth in the American and Hornsby in the National, of course. Who are the most dangerous base runners? Very easy to answer, too—Eddie Collins in the American and Max Carey in the National.

On the ballots used by the league players to vote on an all-American league and the National league, the names of two players were printed. One was: What batter in your league do you most dread at the bat in a pinch? The other: What base-runner in your league is most dangerous?

Unexpected Answers.

It was rather suspected the answers would be as above. But it also was anticipated that some other mighty interesting vote might be unearthed. For instance:

Ruth at the bat is a deadly menace to seven other American league clubs, but what batsman most inspires respect in the breasts of the Yankees? And what about the St. Louis Nationals—is there some player whom they fear as much as their rivals fear Rogers Hornsby?

Well, some of the players neglected to answer the questions presented to them. One veteran pitcher in the National league had to have his little joke over which batter he feared most in a pinch. "All of them," he answered. But a big proportion put themselves on record. The following is the vote on the most dangerous batter in the American league:

Ruth, 60; Bassler, Detroit, 10; Cobb, Detroit, 8; Sheely, Chicago, 7; Eddie Collins, Chicago, 5; Sewell, Cleveland, 3; Speaker, Cleveland, and Pipp, New York, 2; Goslin, Washington; Peckinpaugh, Washington; Judge, Washington, and Manush, Detroit, 1 each.

Johnny Bassler, it turns out, is the batter the Yankees consider most dangerous. Eight of them so voted. Four others said Ty Cobb was the worst kind of bad meat in their opinion. Three nominated Joe Sewell, of Cleveland, two Eddie Collins, of Chicago, one Manush, of Detroit, and one Goslin, of Washington.

Eddie Collins had a big lead as most dangerous base runner in the American league. He drew 85 votes, compared to 9 for Cobb, 4 for Ruth, Washington, and one for Babe Ruth. Eddie led the American league in stolen bases with 44.

Here is the vote on the most dangerous batter in the National league: Hornsby, 60; Wheat, Brooklyn, 16; Young, New York, 10; Roush, Cincinnati; Carey, Pittsburgh; High, Brooklyn, and Kelly, New York, one each.

Votes of the Cardinals as to the slugger they most fear are divided evenly between Roush, of Cincinnati, and Wheat, with one cast for "Pep" Young.

Interestingly enough it develops that the Boston Braves fear Wheat more than they do Hornsby. Fourteen take off their hats to Zack as compared to four who bow to Hornsby. The Brooklyn outfielder tears the life out of the Boston pitchers whenever he meets them.

Eighty-five National league players declare Carey the most dangerous base runner. Roush, Cincinnati, and Traynor, Pittsburgh, get a vote apiece. Carey got 49 stolen bases this year. (End Ball Vote Series.)

MOREHOUSE PALYS MORRIS BROWN TODAY

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Morehouse college and Morris Brown university football teams will meet on the Morehouse college campus in one of the best colored football games of the season in Atlanta.

The game last year ended in a 6 to 0 victory for the Morehouse eleven, and the Morris Brown huskies are eager to even up matters this afternoon.

Morris Brown has a decided advantage on the kicking for "Sleepy" Edwards is considered one of the best punters in southern colored football circles.

During 1922 the sum of $1,580,671.20 was spent for public elementary and high school education in the United States.

CUBS TO MEET BULL PUPS TODAY

Macon, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—Mercer's Cubs left Macon tonight twenty strong for Washington, Ga., where, on Friday, they will meet the Georgia Bulldogs on the gridiron. Six of the first-year Mercers came from the vicinity of Washington. Seven of "Tank" Gilliam's Mercer "cats" will carry injuries with them which may preclude their playing, he said before leaving. Smalley, fullback; Butts, end; Rogers, tackle; Skelton, half, and others of the Junior Orange and Black's best number among these.

The Cubs' 12-0 jolt at the hands of Tech freshmen Saturday was the first defeat of the season, but here looks rather dark for a Mercer victory Friday. The Athens eleven is conceded to be the best first-year aggregation in the south by the Mercer coaches.

If the condition of the men permits the Mercer lineup will be: Center, Forrester; tackle, Rogers and Latimer; ends, Glen Davis and Butts; quarterback, Heidt, Neil or Skelton; half, Skelton and Skelton, or Massey; full, Smalley.

3,000 WITNESSES ARE EXPECTED

Washington, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—Advance sale of tickets for the Mercer freshmen football game Friday afternoon indicates the keen interest felt in the first college football contest to be staged in Washington. Officials of the American Legion, Wooten post, American Legion, have the preliminaries in charge and expect an attendance of more than 3,000.

All business houses of Washington and Lincolnton have signed an agreement to observe a half holiday tomorrow. Preceding the game there will be a contest between Louisville High and Washington High, to be called at 2 o'clock. Ten-minute games will be played by the high school teams in order that the preliminary game will be completed in time for the big contest to start promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

AUBURN RATS PLAY TODAY

Auburn, Ala., November 6.—(Special.)—The Auburn freshmen team will engage in battle with the Birmingham Southern Panthers and Drake field at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon in their second game on the campus this season. Saturday's game will mark the fourth game of the season, the Auburn rats having played University of Georgia freshmen, Mercer freshmen and Howard college freshmen already.

The rather disastrous season, to date, does not dampen the hopes of the laboring rats on the Auburn plains and the coaches in charge. The probable lineup that will face the Methodist team will be: Center, Paperson; end, Burns and Prim, guards; Scott and Big Manley, tackles; Shepard and John Richardson, ends; Boone, quarter; Lewis and Tuzworth, halves, and Granger, fullback. Another set of locks that will probably be called on is Willis, quarter; Ellis and Newome, halves, and Shotts, fullback.

KANE CONFIDENT FOR MANDELL

New York, November 6.—The aura of mystery which has hung about Sammy Mandell since it was announced that he was to fight Jack Bernstein was lifted Thursday when Eddie Kane dropped into town bearing word from the Pacific coast, the home country of unknown quantity, that the fight Friday night will be "a good workout for my little Sammy Mandell."

Eddie, the saw-off manager of the "sheik of fistiana," the only title that Mandell has yet won, spread a tale of prowess about Mandell that brought tears to the eyes of his listeners.

"It was never so confident of winning a fight as I am of this one," he began in all seriousness. "Sammy will punch Bernstein full of holes. The kid is in great shape. Mandell had four bouts on the coast in eight nights, beating two of the best fighters there, Frankie Burns and Dick Hoppe. He will scale 134 pounds at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon."

ROYALTY SEES GIANTS WIN

London, November 6.—(By The Associated Press.)—King George, Queen Mary and their two sons, the Prince of Wales and Prince Henry, today saw the New York Giants play the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 5, in an exhibition game at the Stamfordbridge football grounds.

With the royal family at American Ambassador Kellogg and around them were approximately 7,000 of His Majesty's subjects and several hundred American. Almost the entire tip straight off the bat toward the royal box directly behind the plate, the king and queen either dodged or put up their hands to protect their heads. Each time, of course, the ball collided harmlessly with the wire netting sheltering the grandstand spectators and rolled to the ground.

The king seemingly enjoyed the fact that his instinctive act of protecting the head that wears the crown was without its amusing aspects. He got several good laughs out of the situation while many of his subjects so far lost control of themselves as to smile discreetly and quietly.

By winning today the Giants avenged their downfall in the first game yesterday when the Sox won, 9 to 6. Tomorrow the teams will take the boat train for Paris.

Today's score: Sox, 5; Giants, 8. Batteries: Faber, Robertson and Ruel; Noh, Bentley, Jonnard and Gowdy, Henline.

Vancouver, British Columbia.—Over 25,000,000 board feet of lumber was exported from this port during the month of September, the actual figures being 26,784,000 feet. Since the first of the year the total lumber exports amounted to 323,056,000 board feet. This is a large increase over the total for the whole last year.

Petrels, Crippled, Entrain Today for Howard Game

BY BILL MORROW.

Oglethorpe's band of traveling Petrels will hit the road again today, Coach Robertson and his crowd of players entraining at 11:40 o'clock this morning for Birmingham, where Howard college's hopes will entertain in one of Saturday's grid meetings. Regardless of the fact that the Petrels hold the edge in the dope, injuries in the Oglethorpe ranks that have come to light lately for the odds to swing from the side of the Stormy Petrels and cause the probable outcome of the Oglethorpe-Howard tilt to be even more in doubt.

Following the street victory over Sewanee it was announced that the Oglethorpe gridders had survived the 60 minutes of play with the use of minor aches and bruises, but during the last two days several of the vital clogs in the Petrel machine have acknowledged injuries that will probably keep them out of Saturday's game.

Nix's Side Injured.

Marvin Nix, right end and one of the most brilliant players in the Petrel camp, is suffering from a badly banged-up side and will hardly see service in the fracas with Howard. Nix carried several bruised spots with him against the Tigers and his side was further injured as the Sewanee backs vainly tried to gain around his post.

Linton Cooper has missed several practices during the week on account of sickness and will likely rely on the change of pace and ability to step skillfully, he has risen in rating from a scrub back to a regular in Coach Robertson's first-string backfield.

adelphe teams continued first in home runs and last in the league races. This year Connie Mack built up his left field blunder fence and made home-run hitting more difficult. His team did not finish last.

There is but one genuine home-run hitter in the major leagues and that is Ruth. Beside him faded all other so-called "home-run kings" or "princes." There are some hard hitters in the big leagues who manage to pile up fairly good home run totals in bandbox parks, but the only man that is ever considered seriously by the public as a home run hitter is Ruth. He would have gotten his home runs had he been swinging a bat during any other period of baseball history. He is the only home-run hitter today whose accomplishments are not chiefly due to the lively ball.

A TOTAL of 102 more home runs in the National than in the American does not necessarily prove that the National league hitters are better, nor does it prove that National league pitchers are inferior. It is probably just proof that the National league's gross playing space is smaller than the American's.

In the National league the Giants, finishing first, totaled 95 home runs. The Phillies, finishing last, totaled 94 home runs in 1923. In the American league the Yankees, finishing first, totaled 112 home runs and the Athletics, finishing last, totaled 85.

Nearly 40 per cent of the National league home runs this year were made by Giants and Phillies, leaders and tail-enders. This does not prove that Giants and Phillies had the best slugger in their league, it proves rather that Giants and Phillies played on ball parks where it was comparatively easy to make home runs. Their home parks, particularly the home grounds of the Phillies, have a set of rules in that many flies, easily caught on a fair-sized playing field, drop into pavilion or bleacher sections for home runs.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL 55 YEARS OLD

New York, November 6.—Inter-collegiate football today celebrated the 55th anniversary of its birth. The gridiron game in America had its inception in a contest between teams representing Rutgers and Princeton November 6, 1869.

The game at that time resembled rugby more than the present style of play. Princeton, Rutgers and Yale drafted a set of rules in 1873 modeled upon the "association" code and in 1876, Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Columbia formulated a modified rugby code, which formed the real basis of the modern game.

Governor Clifford Walker and Agricultural Commissioner J. J. Brown were both absent from their offices at the capitol Thursday. Both attended the Hancock county fair, now in progress at Sparta, and made addresses during the day.

WINDER RENOMINATES THOMPSON AS MAYOR

Winder, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—George Thompson, incumbent, was renominated as mayor of the city of Winder, Ga., at the annual primary held here Wednesday, J. H. Jackson and J. E. Lay incumbents, were renominated councilmen, and J. B. Phelan defeated J. W. Carrington, incumbent, for the third place on the ticket. About 75 more votes were cast in the city primary than in the national election.

CORLESS AGAIN OGLETHORPE CO-ED COACH

Charley Corless, guard of the Oglethorpe foot ball team has again been selected to coach the co-ed basketball team of Oglethorpe, which will play a representative schedule including many girl high school teams in and around Atlanta. The co-eds will use the basketball court that is to be constructed in the basement of the Lupton Hall annex. The Petrel varsity will also practice there and the contractors have promised the Oglethorpe authorities that the court will be ready for use the first of January.

Corless will be hampered in putting out a quietest this season, as only one member of the 1923 team has returned to school. She is Miss Selma Barden, who was a star guard last year.

New players, who have signified their intention of trying out for the club are as follows:

Miss Curley Mae Chastain, who played for two years with Butler university; Miss Evelyn Hollingsworth, member of the champion senior team of Girls High; Miss Harriet Libby, who has played with Coconino academy in Maine; Miss Evelyn Mitchell, a member of the Agnes Scott freshman team last season, and Miss Louise Smith, who has seen service with Rockmart High.

GARDEN CITY GETS TOURNEY

New York, November 6.—With the selection today of the Salisbury country club, at Garden City, Long Island, as the site for the 1925 national public links championship, the United States Golf association has completed its major title awards for next season.

Definite dates have not yet been selected for the public links event, but it will be held sometime in August.

The east will have three out of four of the outstanding tournaments under U. S. G. A. supervision. The amateur championship will be held at the Oakmont, Pa., Country club, and the open tournament at the Worcester, Mass., Country club. The middle-west obtains the women's national event, which will be held in St. Louis.

The far west has yet to stage one of these national tournaments, but there is a likelihood that one of them, probably the open championship, will go to the Pacific coast in 1926.

CONSIDERING the value of home runs in winning pennants, any argument is knocked out by the record of the Washington club this year. The Nationals had the poorest home run hitting team in the major leagues. They made 22 during 1924. They won a pennant and a world championship. They concentrated on getting hits and not on making home runs. Philadelphia teams, while making the four-bagger the thing of paramount importance, managed to finish last each year.

THE important hitters of the majors do not go in for home runs. The four-base hit is incidental as far as they are concerned. The two leaders of the big leagues, Ruth and Hornsby, are excepted. Ruth hits homers naturally; Hornsby hits so hard that a percentage of his hits are bound to be for triples.

Take the first six players in the order in which they finished in the batting averages and consider their home run totals for the season: American—Ruth 46, Stephenson 4, Jamieson 3, Falk 6, Collins 6, Basler 1.

National—Hornsby 25, Wheat 14, Young 10, Cuyler 8, Roush 3, Bresler 4.

Only Ruth ever got a team anywhere because of his home run hitting ability.

SANDE WILL RIDE AGAIN

New York, November 6.—Earl Sande, America's greatest jockey, will ride again despite injuries which he received in Saratoga in August when his horse fell with him.

Sande, who rode Zez to victory over Papyrus in the great international race last year, made this announcement Friday when he left Roosevelt hospital where he has been confined since his accident. Though his leg is still in splints he is able already to get about with the aid of a cane.

Mrs. Jeff Singer Dies.

America, Ga., November 6.—(Special.)—Mrs. Jeff Singer, sister of W. M. Humber, of Americus, died today at Plains, following an illness of several weeks. She was a member of a prominent Stewart county family. The body was taken there today for funeral and interment.

Casualty List Large as Louisiana Team Arrives; Freshmen Play Florida

BY JULIAN GRIFFIN.

Walt Godwin, sturdy and stocky guard of the Yellow Jacket crew, is liable to find himself playing quarterback against Mike Donahue's team from L. S. U. here Saturday. Fred Moore, regular general of the team, will be forced to witness the struggle from the sidelines on account of injuries, and Craig Wilton is on the ragged edge, as far as physical fitness for mortal combat is concerned.

Wilton was running signals with the varsity squad yesterday afternoon, but it is not known just how long he will be able to last and whether his old injury will force him to the sidelines, so Godwin was subpoenaed from the line and assigned to the job of calling signals from quarter on the second string eleven, so that he can be called on if necessary. The length of the injured list may necessitate other changes to the lineup, and it is certain that the starting team of the past few Saturdays will be changed considerably.

Among the men who were announced last night as unable to play under almost any condition Saturday are Barron, Harris, Moore, Nabelle, Reeves, Farnsworth and Carson, all of whom have played with these men, and they will be forced to sit idly by while their teammates battle for victory on the field of combat.

Mack Tharpe, a tackle who has been making a splendid showing under fire this year and who would have started the game, suffered an attack of acute appendicitis the other day and the doctor will more than likely advise Mack to stay out Saturday. Tharpe says he is feeling all right now and is ready for action, but he was not allowed to come down to the field in uniform yesterday. Orders are orders, so Mack will no doubt be forced to sit on the sidelines with the rest of the incapacitated Jackets.

Wilton Calls Signals.

Craig Wilton's injury was sufficiently healed for him to run signals and Coach Alexander will probably start him Saturday, but he is wisely grooming Godwin in event Wilton is unable to go the full four periods. Irvin and Marshall stand good chances of seeing service at ends during the fray on Saturday.

Connelly and Carpenter are rounding back into form and are joining the select circle of Tech players who are being groomed for the future.

The team that was running signals as the first squad yesterday consisted of Doole, at center; Forrester and Carney, at tackle; Skelton and Hutcheson, tackles; Gardner and King, ends; Wilton, quarter; Sam Murray and Williams, halves, and Wyoff, fullback.

Mike Donahue and 24 of his charges from L. S. U. are scheduled to arrive in Atlanta this morning at 8:30 o'clock. The Louisiana State boys will work out on Grant field this afternoon at 2 o'clock, which will give them plenty of time to limber up and run signals before the Jackets come down for their daily dozen at 4 o'clock.

With the game only one day and several hours off, Tech has at least one thing to be thankful for in the face of the exceedingly long casualty list—Doug Wyoff, fullback of all-American caliber, is in good condition and feeling fine, and Doug can be depended on.

Those who will make the trip are: Hearn, captain; Elliott, Hood, Gaston, Edwards, Martin, Lillard, Fair, Manget, Sprick, Robertson, McBride, Crowe, Thrash, Akin, Connolly, Wright, Reid, Hawkins, Bradley and Bradshaw. The expedition will be headed by Coaches Johnson and Griffin, "Fat" Griggs, manager, while "Purton," negro rubber, will bring up the rear.

FIRST BAT. WINS CAGE CONTEST

The first battalion basketball team won its second game of the week Thursday afternoon, defeating the fourth battalion 33 to 5 in a loosely played game, in the fourth game of the first round of the regimental basketball championship of Georgia Tech military department. The games are being played each afternoon on the new court recently erected.

The game was featured by many long shots on the part of the winners. Passing was the keynote of the victory and it was to the extra good passing on the part of the first battalion that spelled defeat for the fourth battalion.

This afternoon one of the best games of the week is scheduled between the first and third battalions. It will be played at 4 o'clock.

Speculative Wall Street Believes That Stocks Like American Can Selling Above $100

New York, November 6.—While the volume of business handled on the stock exchange today was smaller than yesterday's, heavy out-of-town buying continued, with Wall street profit-taking. People who bought stocks last June in anticipation of a Coolidge victory have been selling these stocks for the past two days to the public, which figured that the republican victory in congress and the senate had not been discounted in the stock marketwise.

above $100 a share will be split up. The gossip on Can is that there will be four shares of new stock offered for one outstanding share and the dividend on the new shares will be $3.

Another reason for early morning lower prices was found in the calling of loans by the Wall street banks. While there was no change of importance in money rates the money market was firmer today than for many weeks.

Willis-Overland shares were conspicuous for weakness on the announcement by Willis-Overland that one of its closed models had been cut $140. This is the third company to cut prices.

Directors of the American Radiator company met today and declared a fifty per cent dividend in stock "A."

A special meeting of shareholders was called for December 4 to authorize an increase in the stock from $22,000,000 to $47,000,000. Two new directors were elected.

Railroad stocks were strikingly strong on the belief that something definite will be done in the very near future regarding the proposed Vau Sweringen merger and that with that consolidation completed others will follow. It was learned today that a meeting has been called for early next week of the general committee appointed by the various railroads involved in the proposed Nickel Plate merger.

New York, November 6.—Electric bets aggregating $2,000,000 made Wall Street are now being paid, mostly through J. S. Fried & Company, the firm specializing in such business. This total is very much smaller than for several presidential-election years for the reason that the element of uncertainty this year was relatively small as reflected in the odds which were the largest on record, 30 to 1 against the element of a following of 15 to 1 in favor of Coolidge. Betting odds quoted in Wall Street

Oil shares failed to make any appreciable response to the increase in

Gulf Coast crude prices and the declaration of an extra dividend of $1 a share on Vacuum Oil as compared with three previous extras of 25 cents.

Public utilities showed a firmer tone, American Light and Traction standing out with a net gain of 1 1/2 at 138. Coal stocks also were in good back his principal plus profits. Quotations out of line with facts obtain in the open market in election betting or for stocks are not likely remain ill-balanced long.

Another weekly decrease in crude oil production is reported by the American Petroleum Institute, the and Chief interest in the radio group centered in the public offering tomorrow of 75,000 shares of DeForest at $21 a share, preliminary subscriptions being reported largely in excess of the total issue with a premium bid for the stock in the open market. List radio shares showed a decline for the week ending November 1 in daily production being 13,650 barrels to 19,440. The weekly increases have been small but by looking backward it may be seen how much ground has been covered. The 19,440 barrels production for the seven days ending November 1 compared

Sugar.—New York, November 6.—A decline of 34c to the loads of 100 lbs. was paid, occurred in the raw sugar market today. Sales increased offerings of full duty sugars. Sales of 100 lbs. of No. 12, 100 lbs. of No. 11, 14,000 bags at 5.53 to local refinery, also 25,000 bags of No. 11, an export order, all for the second half November arrival.

The sugar futures market was irregular with prices lower under steady liquidation, promoted by the decline in the spot market, while distal positions were steady on covering and Cuban buying. Final prices were two points lower to two not higher, December closed 8.04; March, 3.10; May, 3.00; July, 3.18.

The decline in the spot market restricted the rise in refined sugar, although prices remained unchanged at 7.15 to 7.50 for the higher grades.

Refined futures were nominal.

The Company also has very modern harbor facilities and has developed an extensive forest tract. The management of this Company is in the hands of Mr. Walter C. Sherman, Vice President, whose business ability is better demonstrated by the fact that the Company has never shut down its operations since organization, and has at no time passed or been late on any interest or dividend payments; it is a company that has never defaulted on any of its obligations, generating full capacity, which proves conclusively that the management is of the very highest. Minor C. Keith, formerly the operating head of the United Fruit Company, is president.

TATNALL SEEKS MISSING BALLOTS

Reidsville, Ga., November 6.—The race for sheriff in Tatnall county is believed to hang upon the recovery of a ballot box in one of the lower precincts of the county which has disappeared. The race is between J. H. Kennedy, democratic nominee, and E. H. Bacon, Jr.

On the face of first returns, Bacon was winner by three votes, receiving 1,006 to 1,003 for Kennedy. Upon reports that a mistake had been made, a recount of the box was made, with the result that Kennedy received 22 votes more than Bacon instead of three votes less.

Another mistake was alleged and a new recount was made, with the result that the box disappeared. About the same time, Judge Walter W. Sheppard granted a temporary injunction against a recount. He set November 15 as the date for a hearing on the injunction.

In the meantime, all hands have joined in the hunt for the missing ballot box.

RESULT HELD TO REBUKE RADICALISM

taxes and would push other radical proposals.

All this kind of spirit, it is now anticipated, will disappear. Coolidge is safe in office for four years, with an immensely powerful mandate from the people. Members of the lower house of congress, on the contrary, come up for election in two years. So also will one-third the senate. A universal belief is that hardly any congressman bearing the label republican will care to go before his constituents with a record of having opposed Coolidge.

Democrats Will Not Oppose.

Many democrats, because they are inherently conservative, will feel the same way about not opposing Coolidge. Of course, a few of the more determined radicals will continue to fight. La Follette belongs to that peculiar temperament which makes a luxury of martyrdom. To conform to, find himself with the majority would be painful to La Follette. But while La Follette and a few others will continue to go their old course, he will find followers among congressmen much harder to recruit than they were last spring.

The feeling is that the public by its immense vote has presented Coolidge with a big stick, and with a mandate to use it on the heads of congress. But politicians say that Coolidge will not be called on actually to use the big stick. A man who is known to have a big stick can afford to walk softly. Hardly any congressman would deny, and hardly any will forget, that if Coolidge should say to the country that any one republican congressman is not deserving of reelection by his party, that congressman might as well retire from public life.

Even if the formal republican majority in the newly elected lower house should be narrower than now seems probable, the response of both republicans and democrats to conservative leadership is expected to be certain.

$227,551 RAISED BY CHEST LEADERS

R. Eleazer, Capital City laundry; James A. Holloman, Montag Brothers; E. R. Craighen, joint terms; W. F. Brooks was announced to speak Saturday at the Atlanta Dental college and Fonville McWhorter was announced for the Forsyth theater on the same date.

Pastor Offers Plan.

Marvin Williams, pastor of the Wesley Memorial church, and chairman of the speakers' bureau subcommittee on making next Sunday "Community Chest Sunday" in Atlanta, announced Thursday that engagements already have been made with a number of ministers in the city for four-minute speakers to tell of the chest at morning services. A number of other ministers, Mr. Williams said, will make the chest the theme of their sermons Sunday morning, some of these being in addition to the four-minute speaker from the chest bureau.

"I want every minister in Atlanta, regardless of creed or denomination, to take this publication as my personal invitation addressed individually to him, that he call on the speakers' bureau for any help the chest organization can render in making Community Chest Sunday in his church an emphatic success," said Mr. Williams Thursday. "I have been in touch with many ministers, but I know that it will be physically impossible for me to reach all of them. So I ask now that they call community chest headquarters, Walnut 5837, either Friday or Saturday and receive our cooperation."

Among the gifts announced by Chairman Black at Thursday's meeting was one for $200 from a New York visitor present at the luncheon with a friend engaged in the campaign.

"This man has come nearly a thousand miles to find me in the midst of a campaign here in Atlanta," said Mr. Black. "All his interests are in New York, yet he is moved to help. He is making a present today of $200 to the chest bureau."

Yesterday a man just arrived from South Africa came into my office to sign his pledge card. I think it is interesting that the new men we will be hearing from the islands of the sea."

Workers Are Cheered.

Two Thursday night and exceeded their quota and their report was cheered by other workers. "Now you can start all over again," was Mr. Black's rejoinder. He said that the quota of each team was a minimum quota. "That's the least you are expected to raise," he said. "You can make it as much more as you like."

Among Thursday's gifts from the colored division was one for $1,200 from A. P. Herndon, wealthy negro, who owns several barber shops and some downtown property.

The $75,000 gift from Fulton county was reported by Captain George M. Hope, member of the county board, who stated the appropriation was made Wednesday afternoon by unanimous action of the board.

Doing this the board acted voluntarily and without having heard from the committee which Chairman Black was organizing, without the board's knowledge, to appear before it with a formal petition.

Thursday's Reports.

Thursday's reports in detail were as follows:

Previously reported, $36,321.

Division A, Fred S. Gould, $7,709 additional.

Division B, Charles N. Walker, $9,992 additional.

Division C, Roy Le Craw, $3,025 additional.

Division D, Julian V. Boehm, $6,123 additional.

Division E, big groups, Herbert E. Choate, and Division F, T. C. Danham, $8,373 additional.

Special gifts committee, J. S. Kennedy, $21,040 additional.

Mr. Black announced that John W. Grant had doubled his 1924 contribution. Sam E. Finley and several other contributors to last year's total already are on the roll of 100 per cent increase.

FORWARD STRIDES SEEN BY LEADERS

now concerned it is of primary importance to the state as a whole, inasmuch as it will authorize other county groups in the future to form themselves into highway districts for the construction of main trunk highways. Thus, counties through which the Atlanta and Macon highway runs could organize into a highway district and issue bonds for construction of a permanent road between the two cities, in similar manner. Or, the counties between Atlanta and Augusta, or any other two points in the state, could form a similar highway district.

The importance of the amendment to the future of the state's principal roads cannot be overestimated, in the opinion of good road enthusiasts, and it is likely that the plan will be adopted.

ed in other parts of the state within a short time.

The plan in large measure amounts to an immediate realization of the anticipated proceeds, to the counties concerned, of the gasoline and oil tax revenues for years to come, and coupled with federal aid funds should make possible early completion of a number of the most important roads in the state.

The Peach county amendment, third of those ratified on Tuesday, means the creation of new county, out of portions of Houston and Macon counties, to be known as Peach county and the town of Fort Valley as the county seat. This will be the 161st county in the state.

To Combine Offices.

Another amendment ratified will allow any county which contains within its borders a city of 52,000 population, or over, to consolidate its city and county governments, in the interest of administrative economy. Under the terms of the amendment a local bill to permit this, and providing for the details of the consolidation, is to be passed through the legislative and a referendum election then held in the county affected.

The amendment also provides that in both county and city precincts there must be a clear majority in the county outside the city, as well as a majority in the city itself, to ratify. This amendment does not apply to the city of Atlanta, inasmuch as cities which have more than one county are not included.

Still another amendment authorizes the general assembly to consolidate the offices of collector of taxes and receiver in any county which desires, by popular vote, to make the change. The new official shall be known as county commissioner and shall exercise either may specify what pay he is to receive for his services or authorize county authorities to do this. The official may be paid by salary or fee or salary system, as desired, it is said.

Brunswick Terminals.

Under another amendment the city of Brunswick is authorized to increase its bonded indebtedness up to 14 per cent of the assessed value of the taxable property in the city, for the purpose of acquiring, building and operating port terminal facilities. Ratification of the bond issue must be voted by two-thirds of the qualified voters in the city.

It is said that he coveted the chancellorship of the exchequer, which office had been held by his famous father, Lord Randolph Churchill. Details of the offer to the chancellorship, with a good show of authority, it is stated that Sir Robert Horne, although willing to drop his long career in the conservative ranks in order to join the government, was willing to make the sacrifice only if appointed chancellor of the exchequer.

Apparently the prime minister offered him the portfolio of labor, deeming this office one of first importance, in view of the numerous questions of unemployment and returns for the benefit of the workers.

The chancellorship of the exchequer is the highest office in the cabinet next to the prime minister, while the labor portfolio has heretofore been regarded as one of the least important.

Robert Horne had held the chancellorship in the coalition ministry, and according to his friends, not being paid for his services, he declined to take any other post.

"Die-Hards" Angered.

The incident is rendered more poignant because the premier has given the labor portfolio to Sir Arthur Steel Maitland, who previously had held only minor offices in the government.

By appointing Mr. Churchill, a free-trader, to the chancellorship, Mr. Baldwin possibly intended to emphasize that there was no going back from the policy of the country in 1923 elections against a protectionist policy, but he has probably thereby incensed the angrier and resentful of the protectionist "die-hard" section of his party.

Whatever may be the real history of these incidents, neither the elevation of William Churchill nor the exclusion of Sir Robert Horne is likely to make for peace within the conservative ranks. On the other hand, the formation of this ministry seems an end to the feud which has existed since the collapse of the last coalition government between the Simon-pure conservatives and those like Austen Chamberlain and Birkenhead, who associated themselves so closely with Lloyd-George in the coalition.

Baldwin's Omission Notable.

Perhaps the most distinctive thing about the ministry is the disappearance of Lord Curzon from the foreign office. This change, however, is not generally expected, as Lord Curzon, the new foreign minister, has no actual foreign office experience either to help or hamper him. He is expected to be a man of generally moderate views to carry on the work of his office without friction.

Lord Birkenhead, but for his temporary exclusion from administrative duties, owing to his coalition activities, would have been entitled to the lord chancellorship, but as secretary for India he stands for an enlightened Indian policy, and his appointment gives general satisfaction.

Seven of the new ministers were not in Mr. Baldwin's former cabinet, namely: Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Churchill, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Arthur Steel Maitland, Sir John Gilmour, Lord Balfour and Sir Douglas H. Hogg.

One notable omission is that of the Earl of Balfour. Mr. Baldwin's highest ministerially is the leader of the house of commons, but this duty will mainly devolve upon Austen Chamberlain, who, in addition to the foreign portfolio, has been selected as deputy leader of the house.

The new secretary of the colonies, Lieutenant Colonel L. C. M. S. Amer, is an enthusiastic tariff reformer and a strong supporter of the Singapore naval base scheme. With Mr. Churchill holding the nation's foreign portfolio, it may be assumed that there will be no dealings with direct protection, although Churchill would probably have no objection to the proposed extension of the McKenna duties, under the safeguarding of industries act. It also may be assumed that there will be no guaranteeing of a loan to Russia.

Two Mountain Chains Appear in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., November 6.—Two chains of mountains were ablaze tonight with the most intense forest fire that has ever swept that section of the state, says a special dispatch from Irvine, Estill county, to the Courier-Journal. The flames had reached within half a mile of 700 crude oil storage tanks.

in the American sense of the term will not be levied against imports.

Baldwin has reserved to himself the premiership with the added duties of first lord of the treasury and leader of the house of commons. Austen Chamberlain, who was in such a great disfavor with his party during the Bonar Law and former Baldwin regimes that he could not even be given a minor cabinet post, now becomes deputy leader of the house.

Retains Best of Old Cabinet.

Churchill, who is the most brilliant and at the same time most erratic member the house has enjoyed since F. E. Smith became a peer, probably will be more prominent in debate than either of his two nominal chieftains.

"F. E." who now is known by the more dignified title of Viscount Birkenhead, has been chosen secretary for India, a post which, owing to the dissension in the Indian empire, has assumed increased importance. Birkenhead was Lloyd-George's lord chancellor.

Baldwin has retained the best men of his former cabinet, and has added to them the strength of such men as Birkenhead, Austen Chamberlain, and Churchill. In brilliance, wit, debating ability, and political foresight there has been nothing like the present conservative ministry since the Lloyd-George coalition, which drew upon the brains of two parties.

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans has been selected for the war office and William C. Bridgeman will be the first lord of the admiralty. Both men served in Baldwin's previous ministry: the former as postmaster-general and the latter in the home office.

Not One Without Experience.

There is not a member of the cabinet without earlier experience in an English ministry. Sir Samuel Hoare returns to his former job as air minister. Sir Douglas Hogg is back as secretary general, and Sir Philip Lloyd-George returns as president of the board of trade.

The significance of the new Tory ministry lies in the eclipse of the die-hard who, if they could, would have played directly into the hands of labor with a government so reactionary that a return of socialists to power at the next election would have been assured.

BALDWIN SPRINGS TWO SURPRISES.

LONDON, November 6.—(By The Associated Press).—On the whole, the new British cabinet likely to be well received by the country, but it has surprised the public in two first-class surprises. The first, killing the fatted calf for Churchill, a newcomer to the ranks of conservatism, who has been in the government since 1922, and the second, which is generally held to be a consequence of the first, in the exclusion of Sir Robert Horne.

Mr. Churchill, by reason of his political record, which under one party or another has covered the most important offices in the government, could have been considered a safe choice to high office in the new Baldwin cabinet, but it was generally supposed, in view of his so recent reconversion to conservatism, that he would be required to serve a sort of novitiate period in one of the less important offices.

Under the present flag, as now under the conservative colors, he always waged unceasing and bitter war against socialism and bolshevism and since the recent elections, when he won by the conservatives on an anti-socialist plank, Mr. Churchill undoubtedly held that he was thereby entitled to the highest consideration.

Horne Wanted Exchequer.

It is said that he coveted the chancellorship of the exchequer, which office had been held by his famous father, Lord Randolph Churchill. Details of the offer to the chancellorship, with a good show of authority, it is stated that Sir Robert Horne, although willing to drop his long career in the conservative ranks in order to join the government, was willing to make the sacrifice only if appointed chancellor of the exchequer.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Clothes that are sprinkled evenly, folded somewhat in the lines in which they will be ironed and then rolled tightly will mean speedier and better work for the ironer.

Aching Feet.
A handful of Epsom salts in a footbath of hot water is a splendid solution to ease those tired and swollen feet. Soak them for about an hour and note the improvement.

Just a Little Thought.
Pass on the magazines when the family has read them. There are plenty of institutions that will welcome them and much good will be done with little effort and no expense on your part.

A Fireless Cooker.
A small pie plate is convenient to put over the vegetable that is boiling, and to hold the small amount of leftover spinach, beets, etc. The vegetables will heat thoroughly in this way without losing their original flavor or requiring any space for cooking.

200 Autos Burn.
Bradford, Pa., November 6.—The Star garage and about 200 automobiles were destroyed by fire today with a loss of $250,000. The fire started on the second floor of the three-story garage building after an explosion and within a few minutes was beyond control.

Medical Society Auxiliary To Meet.
The regular monthly meeting of the Women's auxiliary to the Fulton County Medical society will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the Academy of Medicine, 32 Howard street. The executive board will meet at 10:30 o'clock.

Whereas, the recent nation-wide publicity given the state through the publishing of the number of children under 12 years of age employed in Georgia, though subsequently admitted to be an error by the editor of 'Good Housekeeping' was unfortunate.

Therefore, Be it resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mrs. T. T. Stephens.

Bainbridge Lions Firm In Stand for Andy Gump

BY RALPH T. JONES.

A man may be down, but he's never out.

The Honorable Andrew Gump may not be president-elect of these United States at this writing, but he still has his friends.

A rascally campaign manager has thwarted the will of the people. The most despicable example of perfidious politics in the history of American popular government cannot separate a regular fellow—100 per cent for the people—from the admiration and affection of those people.

Gump still has his supporters. A telegram has been received at the office of The Constitution, following the heartrending failure of Mr. Gump's presidential ambitions, from the Lions Club of Bainbridge, Ga.

And it carries to the sorrowing ex-candidate the heartening news that the Bainbridge Lions club is still with him. And, in his own immortal words, "Bainbridge goes, so goes the nation."

Sends Sympathy.
The Lions' club at Bainbridge sends its regrets that its members were not given the opportunity to vote for the collarless patriot, the caboose orator.

The club sends assurances that the Gump statesman is not yet out of public life and that the Bainbridge Lions club wants him to address them on national issues at any time that suits his convenience.

Most emphatically, the asphew of Uncle Ben is not out of public life. Not while one drop of Gump blood courses through his veins; not while that golden voice still retains a whisper to be heard above the machinations of crooked politicians; not while the old bank roll can hire a caboose; not while Min is there to lend encouragement of her wisely sympathetic and the sustenance of her vegetable soup.

Let Enemies Beware.
No. Again, no. Let the enemies of the people beware. Let the hirelings who, this time, succeeded in ditching the Gump bandwagon, remember, Gump is still alive, still aggressive, still the champion of the common people.

And, though, perhaps, a warning should not be issued to such a contemptible scoundrel, yet a certain ex-campaign manager may be notified that, if he goes to Bainbridge and meets any of the Lions there he will wish he had gone to the jungles of darkest Africa instead, to consort with the comparatively gentle lions of the quadrupedal persuasion.

Rain or Shine Committee To Care for Delegates.

The Rain or Shine committee is the slogan adopted by the auto committee of the city federation during convention week, since the cars need to convey delegates from point to point will be even more needed in bad weather than if the days are fair, according to Mrs. Newton C. Wing, who has been appointed chairman of autos for the convention.

While a large number of clubwomen have volunteered cars for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, both afternoons and evenings, Mrs. Wing asks that many more women contributed their services, since this is to be one of the largest conventions held in the city.

An interesting feature for the auto hostesses will be the invitation extended to them to attend all the evening and afternoon functions for which they loan their cars, in the same way as the delegates themselves. They will not need badges for this, other than the stickers on their cars.

Auto drivers are needed for the following functions. In addition to the train chairmen and their committees, who will meet all delegates arriving Tuesday, and will also in some cases assist through the week, Tuesday afternoon drivers will meet at the Baltimore, on the east side of West Peachtree, facing north, in front of the Baltimore, to take delegates to the Atlanta Woman's club reception, from 5 to 7 o'clock. The best route will be to turn on West Peachtree at Fourteenth, bringing the cars out at the front entrance of the club on Peachtree. After the route is to the Tabernacle for the evening exercises, and then back to the Baltimore with the delegates.

On Wednesday autos will meet in the same way at the Baltimore and start at 4 o'clock for Hospital 48, where the cars will be needed, and then will turn back to Piedmont avenue, proceeding toward town and turning at Boulevard. Cars will proceed on Boulevard, all the way to manent camp grew out of a succession of pleasant and interesting events.

Mrs. Murray Howard, president, and Mrs. Sefton Strickland, Mrs. Horace Presson and Mrs. A. L. Smith, all efficient chairmen of the club, spent the summer in Dahlgren. Many trips were made by various club members, including a week-end house party composed of 60 guests. From constant contact with the women of the Civic Club of Dahlgren, of which Mrs. Gilliard has been president for many years, grew a fellowship so strong that a mutual desire arose for a permanent camp.

Many sites were offered through Frank Meaders, and in October a group of over 50 motored to Dahlgren to make a selection. The beautiful Mountain inn was turned over to the guests, and many forms of entertainment were offered them, including a chicken dinner on their arrival, a squirrel hunt for the men, a picnic dinner at the falls and an old-fashioned mountain square dance, at which Mrs. Craig Arnold was hostess.

On the day the party was leaving, the members were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Meaders. At that time Mrs. Meaders presented Mrs. Howard with a gold nugget found on the town square. In presenting it Mr. Meaders said "this small token is accompanied by the love and esteem of the community to which you and your fellow clubwomen contributed so much joy last summer. You may count on us," he continued, "to do all in our power to further your plans for a camp."

Judge G. H. Howard, who was present, replied to Mrs. Meaders and said in closing, "We feel that there is no grayer opportunity for pleasure and profit, than association with the people of Dahlgren, and have found in past dealings with them, that their hearts are dealers of pure gold." A recent meeting of the club voted to have the nugget set in a dinner ring for Mrs. Howard.

The offer of the site selected by the members, accompanied by pledges by the "club husbands" to build the camping quarters, was presented to the club in writing Wednesday and was enthusiastically accepted. The men assured the members that sufficient money had already been pledged to build the first unit, and arrangements had been made to begin work, subject to the approval of the club, and the camp would be ready for occupancy next summer. Plans are already being made for the equipment of the camp.

The Market company, composed of several business men of the city and some of the leading club officers, will be present and members will express their joy in having Edgewood avenue opened and paved, because of the splendid accessibility it affords the thousands of housekeepers who daily visit the city market and strive to uphold the farmers in their disposing of fresh, delicious Georgia home-grown products.

College Park Club To Help With Drive.

The College Park Woman's club will sponsor the observance of Forget-Me-Not day today. Mrs. J. D. Conley is chairman of this department of work and cordially solicits the hearty cooperation of the citizens of the town. She and members of her committee will be stationed in various places of business and at most of the car-stops. Civic Committee To Help With Drive.

The civic drive committee of the Atlanta Woman's club, with Mrs. H. Newton C. Wing, chairman, will play a most prominent part in the Forget-Me-Not drive Friday. Mrs. Wing and her band of co-workers will be stationed at Five Points all during the day. The committee is composed of a very large number of most enthusiastic ladies, and although a most satisfactory amount was turned in last year, still a greater sum is anticipated this year.

a large committee will be on duty from 8 to 9, Mrs. J. E. Springer and a committee representing the department of applied education will be on duty from 9 to 11, Mrs. W. L.

This is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. This is what she wrote:

"Gentlemen: I am so wonderfully happy over my discovery, I feel I must tell the world about it. For years I have been ill continually from constipation, always resorting to pills or the like, never having any permanent relief until I heard of your Bran.

Every morning I take two table-spoonsful before my breakfast—and since the latter part of August I must admit have not experienced one sick spell which I have had for years. I have started my little girl

A test will show that a can of Morning Joy makes more cups of coffee to the pound, of equal strength, than competing brands. Every housewife can make this test herself if she wants to. It is very easy to do. But after hundreds of tests made by careful, skilled coffee men, and by domestic science experts, it has been proven conclusively that a can of Morning Joy gives 25% more coffee of equal strength than does the average coffee.

Try any one of the brands sold on the market and you will get something like 38 or 40 cups, and then try Morning Joy and you will get at least 50 cups of equal strength.

Thus while you might pay a little bit more for Morning Joy, you get more coffee and it is cheaper in the end.

PAJAMA AND PANTS

By Louise Dooly

THE smartest tea gown now is made with trousers. Thus, it would seem, the last bulwark of femininity goes down before the onslaught of feminine of the future.

Time was when the tea gown was the costume of allurements par excellence. Flimsy and frothy and sweeping and clinging, it was the garment of all others a woman affected when she would wield all the wiles of her most seductive mood.

When she must dare into the open, and then attack with her strongest ammunition the sulking or the obstinate male.

When, in other words, she would put something over big.

In truth, the use of the tea gown has been from time immemorial, not for the relaxation its artfully negligent character would suggest, but as a firstaid in the wearer's most tremendous situations.

Novelists, dramatists, have found it, accordingly, as essential to a certain atmosphere on the one hand, to good theater on the other, as moonlight or music in the distance.

WITH the passing of the tea gown, we just can't figure out how knickers can fill the void.

Or even the "pajama negligee," which the most authoritative fashion sheets assure us has superseded the tea gown as completely as the horseless carriage now substitutes for the Victoria, which latter equipage reigned when the tea gown enjoyed also the height of its supremacy.

With the pajama negligee, the vogue of the chaise longue reaches its height. Both are a little suggestive of the days of the Reclaimers, not to speak of the Du Barrys.

Smart set literature tells us, too, that the cushions, which looms in modern enchantment of the lounge—beg pardon, chaise longue—must each be decked daily with the lady's favorite flower. Preferably orchids, since orchids are usually the most expensive, and chaise longue, pajama negligee, and the reason for their being—the lady—are all expensive. That is much of their charm.

WE ARE a bit puzzled about this vogue, however.

The success of the whole sans souci setting is made or marred by the grace, the sinuosity, not to say the spinelessness of the actress in the little drama—or farce.

And the motions of the modern woman, even the modern Circe, are not sinuous. They are alert, even sudden. We won't say nervous.

We saw a celebrated actress once in the role of Du Barry spoil all illusion, when, in a scene in which she goes to bed to receive a visitor, the court, she climbs in on all-fours.

It would be terribly disillusioning even to a modern sense of romance if the present-day edition of the grand dame of the boudoir should fall down on such details.

If, instead of sinking poetically in among the cushions, she should in a perfectly business-like and efficient manner go sit down.

(However, neither Du Barry nor her actress impersonator could ever have been guilty of wearing pajamas. They would not have dared to so shock the conventions.)

JUST recently the sale of a portrait of Sarah Siddons was the occasion for reviving interesting tradition of that celebrated ornament of the English stage. One of these traditions is that Mrs. Siddons could make the act of sitting down one of real elegance.

She could sink into a chair tragically, superbly, pathetically, thoughtfully. She could even make it come without loss of dignity.

How many women nowadays can seat themselves even gracefully? (And let us whisper it softly) how many almost sprawl?

BUT we digress, although a whole world of speculation is opened up with the advent of the trousered woman in her hour.

Formidable enough is she looms in her doctor's gown on the judge's bench; with the scepter of state in the gubernatorial chair; or in portraits in oil on the walls of houses of parliament.

BUT when she puts on her most dangerous mood to get what she wants; when she selects that most insidious of her weapons, the guilelessness of dependent, helpless, clinging femininity which hitherto she clothed in the gown, provided she had time to set the stage) if she combines with all this the conscious strength of the wearer of trousers, what meager chance has the poor male?

Unless after all—and here is an arresting thought—like Samson's hair, her best bet lies in skirts.

A Voice in the Wilderness.

"AN intimate incarnation of the disturbance that beauty effects in the lives of men—disturbing beauty impinging on a possessive world."

This is part of John Galsworthy's own explanation of his new book, "The White Monkey," and we can hardly wait to read it.

The reason is that we are told that some of his critics will call it aversive. These are the critics who believe that because the basic and essential social virtues and the conventions founded on them, are being flouted.

Miss Bagley Fills Executive Secretaryship of Camp Fire

Miss Helen Bagley, popular and efficient former executive secretary of Camp Fire, who has recently been made executive secretary of the organization, her short term of office being marked by remarkable success.

Atlanta was left without a Camp Fire executive secretary in October with the marriage of Miss Mary Lou Wilson. Since national headquarters insists that the office be filled by a trained leader qualified to direct the work and hold the training classes for guardians—it meant waiting until an executive could be found to fill the place.

Miss Helen Bagley, assistant executive, stepped right into the breach and carried forward the splendid work. She was well qualified to do this, having done girls' work for years, as well as directing the dramatic and social activities in girls' schools.

While acting as executive Miss Bagley has held meetings of the guardian association of the city, and has acted as guardian to the North avenue school group and other groups, has held hand-craft lessons, directed the dramatics of the Woman's club group and helped every girl in its special work or problem.

Assisted by Miss Bagley the girls' council is planning a fathers' and daughters' banquet, to be given on Thanksgiving.

Miss Bagley has to her credit also the organizing of new groups, one of which is a complete group at Woodbury Hall. All the groups have enlarged their membership.

Outstanding among her accomplishments was the splendid birthday celebration of Camp Fire at Stone Mountain on October 25. An athletic meet was held in the morning, outdoor cooking demonstration at noon, followed by a grand council fire on the top of Stone Mountain.

to the girls a list of books suggested by Miss Lucas at the November meeting of the Council of Girls' agencies. It is Miss Thomasma's idea that the Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta observe National Book week by reading at least one of the books on the list, and report on it at a meeting late in the month.

"Everygirl," the national publication for Camp Fire girls, was discussed, and the girls decided to make this one hundred per cent in their group. The officers elected were: President, Miss Mary Zachary; vice president, Miss Charlotte Constantine; treasurer, Miss Zella Webb.

On Wednesday, November 12, they will plant bulbs which will be given to a hospital.

Saturday, November 15, they will go on a "hare-and-hound" chase; each girl will invite one friend who might become interested in Camp Fire to go with her.

The group of Camp Fire Girls at Highland Avenue school have been very fortunate in securing Miss Marion Smith as their leader. They met Tuesday, November 4, and elected the following officers: President, Catherine Lynch; vice president, Evelyn Flucker; secretary, Lula Coker; treasurer, Dora Aldridge.

Many girls are anxious to join this group, some of whom are Evelyn Fluke, Frances Lawrence, Elizabeth Sheldon, Helen Kirby and Kathryn Efford. The girls are planning a most interesting program for the year, one of their slogans is: "One hundred per cent membership, another 100 per cent subscription to 'Everygirl' magazine."

Mrs. Clarke To Talk On Japanese Customs.

One of the special features of the Japanese silver tea that is to be given Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. I. Callaway, 177 Oakland avenue, will be an interesting talk on Japanese customs by Mrs. Harvey Clarke, a missionary to Japan.

Organists' Guild Opens Season.

The Georgia chapter of the American Guild of Organists opened its ninth season with a choral service Thursday evening among the choir of St. Luke's church, Miss Dora Duck, organist and choirmaster. Miss Eva Bartholomew played two prelude numbers in a virile clean-cut musically fashion. The choral numbers included compositions exclusively of American composers.

The work of the choir showed refined musically training. The noble anthem, "Souls of the Righteous," was sung in a reverent manner, especially commendable as to enunciation and reading.

The solemn prelude of Noble, played by Miss Grace Chalmers Thomson, was a fitting close to the service and was rendered with poise and brilliancy.

The following applications for marriage licenses were filed with the clerk of the Superior Court Thursday: William Cochran, 21, and Orie Aldridge, 18. Sam L. Leatrop, 21, and Lelia Walker, 19.

PREMATURE OLD AGE OF WOMEN

It is no secret that so many women suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex. Dark circles appear under the eyes, a pale, drawn, haggard expression to the countenance, and the weakness which accompanies such ailments is evidenced by the lagging step, headaches, backache and nervous conditions. Every woman who is afflicted in this way should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for half a century has been overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of women.—(Adv.)

Red Riding Hood

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.
Mrs. Morgan Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropic and social lights, is assured by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. The advertisement admits a desire to hide her identity. Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Emerson.
Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother, Mrs. Van Dorn; a young brother, Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother, Bertie, who is away.
The second morning of her employment Hope fails after receiving a mysterious telephone call. Mrs. Schuyler summons Dr. Horace Osborne. Hope tells the doctor she is employed during the afternoon hours on East 70th street. He offers to drive her to the house. The patient is a boy of 5 years, about whom the entire household mysteriously household are foreigners except Hope, who is known as Sonia. A day or two later, a visitor, Colonel Van Saanen, a man of obvious importance, calls at the 70th street house. Hope dismisses him. Later Scarwenka does also. Van Saanen tells Scarwenka he is going to take the boy away that night. Hope decides to call on Dr. Van Saanen for help. He accompanies her to the house, where the two conspirators find the room where the boy is. By a trick the colonel locks Hope and the doctor in the room with the child. They escape through the window and take the boy to a hospital.
The next morning Sally Wallis calls on Hope at the Schuylers. She tells the secretary about her hopeless love affair. The man in the case has just returned to New York after a long absence, and Sally learns that he is ill in a sanatorium and facing a serious operation. Hope enlists the aid of Jim Van Dorn on Sally's behalf. He admits he loves Sally and promises to keep his eye on her.
Later in the day Hope finds Colonel Van Saanen installed at the Scarwenka and learns that all members of the household are leaving the country that night. The boy, Alexander, presents Hope with a valuable ring.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

THE TARTAR BECOMES A PERSONAGE.

Hope let Vasili's remark about the Tartar pass. Obviously it was not a time to discuss the matter of heredity or the importance of certain influences in childhood. As if he followed her thoughts, he asked another question:

"For six months you have lived very close to the boy, mademoiselle. What is your opinion of him?"

She carefully considered her answer. This was the first opportunity she had been given to utter a tactful warning, and it might also be the last.

"We shall never be out of your debt."

"He is a high-strung, high-spirited, fierce-natured, passionate, loyal child," she said, "with an amazingly dominating nature. Incidentally, as, of course, you must realize, he's been badly spoiled. Another year or two of this sort of thing—her gesture took in the message—and he might be completely ruined. So I'm glad to know that his environment at least is to be changed."

"Very much changed, mademoiselle. It will be different indeed. Does your intuition carry you no further? Have you not suspected that, in his own country, this little man may be—shall we say a personage?" Hope dropped her eyes. A picture swept before her of the Tartar in his brilliant bathrobe, with his upstanding black curls buried in her breast.

"Such an idea came to me several times," she admitted, "but it seemed too fantastic to dwell on."

How fantastic it had seemed she could not convey to Vasili, who had not been privileged to observe the casual housekeeping and the exhibitions of temper that prevailed in this establishment. She thought of Adela Mihail, and her surprise found irrepressible expression.

"Surely," she asked, "these people around him have not realized that he is a personage?" She checked her words. It was not fitting to criticize Scarwenka who so recently and so unmistakably had proved his loyalty to his trust. Moreover, she herself was under a definite obligation to Scarwenka. Scarwenka, she remembered, had casually dropped on her desk the newspaper clipping in which Maud Schuyler had optimistically expressed her needs; and she, Hope, had secured the position through this little attention. Scarwenka had heard her declare two months before that she must find more work, and he had not forgotten. Seemingly Scarwenka had always been friendly at heart, despite his unresponsive air. "And yet, of course," she added, with a desire to get back to ordinary ground even on the breath of a platitude, "nothing surprises one nowadays. Anything can happen."

"Anything can happen," Vasili soberly agreed. "And after all it is not so surprising a thing that has happened. He is a small ruler, this little boy, of a small country. A few of your rich men in America have estates almost as large. But, such as it is, it is his land and ours—and tonight," he added on a new note, "we go back to a welcome there, after dragging him over the world for almost five years to save him from his enemies."

"I begin to understand," Hope said, while in her mind incidents of the past played themselves in a recognizable pattern. "You are sure he will be safe?" she could not help asking.

"The last of his enemies is dead, the last who is dangerous," Vasili amended. "Van Saanen still lives, but we have—" He finished with a gesture and a foreign phrase unknown to her. "You put it differently in English. I remember. What have I done for five years but perfect my English?" he added more lightly. "You say we have 'cut his comb.' It is a good idiom. It is almost as good as ours!"

As if refreshed by this dip into idioms, he returned to the subject of the ring.

"You will wear the ring always? It belonged to Alexandree's aunt, an unfortunate lady you have read about. She was with us when we escaped to this country. When she died, last year, we had to find one like yourself to help us. It was Van Saanen who told us of you, by the way, through a friend of yours who is also a friend of his—"

He saw her shiver, and misinterpreted the movement. "We must put that to his credit," he soothingly added, "against his record later. In the beginning he was loyal. But he is weak and our enemies discovered his weakness. They made him believe that if it were not for the boy, he himself— There is a remote relationship—"

He stopped. To the listener one of the most surprising features of this surprising interview was the outpouring from the man whom, in their previous meetings, he had exchanged only a few dozen sentences. Yet it was not hard to understand. Vasili had reached the point where he must talk as a reaction from years of repression. She had proved that she could be trusted, and his present confidence was in part payment of the debt he acknowledged so freely. Also, they were together, waiting for Osborne, and for the moment he had no other demand on his time or thought.

"I will wear the ring as long as I live," she promised, turning it about on her finger with a wondering surmise as to the identity of the "unfortunate lady" who had worn it before her. "But I don't know how to thank you."

He looked at her with sudden seriousness. "We shall never be out of your debt," he said, with a feeling he had not shown since the morning visit. "We had all grown careless, unwatchful, perfumery, discouraged—perhaps even indifferent. Oh, I admit it—yet how could it be different? We are human, and the years were passing and there seemed no hope. Till three weeks ago our return to our own land was as remote as when we fled from it with death behind us."

He stopped to cast a somber backward glance over those four years. "We were always moving," he went on with an effort. "We had left our families over there. We had no homes. We were wanderers on the face of the earth. Is it surprising that we began to let ourselves slip? Even I—even I—"

Hope remembered Scarwenka's words: "Moving, moving, moving." "So it went," Vasili continued. "So it seemed it must always go on. And when we had begun to despair, to give up to grow careless—yes, I must again admit it, mademoiselle, we all grow careless—suddenly, in forty-eight hours, everything changed. When the messenger came to tell me I could not believe him, but I went back to see. It is only yesterday noon that I returned, a week sooner than Van Saanen expected. He had not been so well informed as he thought. Yet even so he must have been almost wrecked by the news of my return. He knew of my arrival five hours after I left the yacht, and I did not know of his till two morning. I had worked all night. There were preparations—many things to do. When I reached this house and learned what had happened—"

He finished with a gesture that told her more than words could have conveyed of the shock of that homecoming. "We might have lost all," he confessed.

For a moment both were silent, contemplating that possible loss. "Wasn't it a risk for you?" Hope ventured at last. "To go back to your country, I mean?"

He smiled again. "Perhaps. Certainly, if my information had been wrong. Yet, perhaps, not so much as you would think. I am not as you see me." He straightened, and for a moment a different man sat before her. His eyes sparkled. "I am not very old. I am not gray. I am not lifeless and fat. Here I have lived in cheap buildings and eaten in cheap places, and when I went back to my own land I did the same thing. Who would see in the old man the kidnaper of a royal baby? The people thought the boy was dead. Only the arch enemies of the throne and the loyal few who helped us knew that he was still alive. Even they did not know where he was hidden, but our enemies searched and plotted."

THE LAWYER
By Sam Simple.
Attorneys of the law are men whose business life is fine; I often wish I had their job And one of them had mine. I'd like to stand before a judge And holler, "I object!" Then face the jury with a smirk And note the grand effect.

The lawyer has a picnic with the witness in the chair, He cross-examines him so hard The poor guy bats the air; He badgers him and twists him up Till he is out of breath, Then quotes the law on perjury And scares him half to death.

As long as people fight and steal, And kill and bootleg, too, The lawyer needn't worry, for There's work for him to do. No wonder, then, he always wears

A smile upon his face, For, win or lose, he gets his fee, And can appeal the case.

A Story About Frank Chance.
That the late and celebrated Frank Chance, famous manager of the old-time champion Chicago National League baseball club, took his base ball seriously is illustrated by an anecdote related some years ago, by his son, Hugh Fullerton.
The Cubs were fighting hard for a certain game. It was a pitcher's battle and the enemy finally won. Chance was very gloomy after the defeat and walked from the club house as though he had lost his best friend.

"Well, cheer up, Frank," said Mrs. Chance, "you still have me."
"Yes," shouted Chance, "and there were a couple of times this afternoon I'd have traded you for a baseball!"

Solution to Thursday's Puzzle.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF TRAVIS

Whitefield, N. H., November 6.—Unable to explain peculiar circumstances surrounding the death of James Travis, post grand juror of the Knights of Columbus chapter, whose body was found in a mill pond yesterday, the police tonight were awaiting the report of an autopsy held today by Dr. H. Y. Kingsford, of Hanover.

Travis disappeared from sight mysteriously early Wednesday morning after he had entered his own door yard. After daylight came, his body was found in the mill pond, resting on two logs 75 feet from the shore and slightly under the surface of the water, which was about four feet deep at that point.

According to information in the possession of the police, Travis returned to his garage about 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning with a friend, Emile Dube, who said he left for his home when Travis started to enter the house being placed in land facing the pond.

It will be 360 feet long, 200 feet wide and 680 feet high. It will have four entrances, 16 high-speed elevators and classrooms, libraries, shops and laboratories. Construction work will begin next week.

ST. AUGUSTINE APARTMENTS

787 Ponce de Leon Ave. Just Completed

THIS very attractive, new building is located in the prettiest and most fashionable section of Ponce de Leon avenue, sitting on an elevated corner lot it will give its occupants an excellent view of its beautiful surroundings. It is of semi-fireproof construction, having hollow tile walls with an outside finish of stucco and big porches break the monotony of the usual straight walls. The inside finish is very pleasing, all the walls, except the kitchen, are papered and the woodwork is beautifully finished in cream. The building consists entirely of four-room units in an arrangement that has proven exceedingly popular with the small and medium size families. Murphy In-A-Door beds are standard equipment throughout. We would suggest today as an excellent time to look them over, and prices may be secured from our office.
